Nazi Invasion Of Scandinavia Creates Three U. S. Problems

Two Nations May be Included Under Neutrality Act

HULL WATCHING

Roosevelt Speeding Back To Capital on Spe- cial Train

BULLETIN
Abroad Roosevelt Train Enroute to Washington—President Roosevelt
special train from Hyde Park, N. Y., Secretary of State Hull said in a statement.

The explosive spread of Europe's war to Scandinavia confronted the administration with three urgent problems today:

1. The safety of some 3,000 American nationals caught in the new theater of hostilities.
2. The question of a new presidential proclamation formally designating Norway—and perhaps Denmark—as a belligerent under the neutrality act.
3. The matter of protecting American shipping interests in the invaded countries, and possible action on extending the proscribed combatation zone to include the waters around the north cape.

While President Roosevelt traveled back to Washington on a special train from Hyde Park, N. Y., Secretary of State Hull said in a
statement:

"I think we are all aware by this time of the extension to another area of the military activities that have been going on in Europe since September. This government is observing very closely and diligently all of the new developments and as nearly as possible ascertaining their nature and significance.

Silent on U. S. Course
"It is likewise proceeding with the same diligence and accuracy it has exercised since September in applying our neutrality and combat area law and other pertinent policies to the European military situation.

"I would not undertake now to speak conclusively about the extent and nature of any steps that may be called for relating to the extension of the combat area or other provisions of our neutrality law or proclamations declaring certain additional or new areas in a state of war. We are assembling as rapidly as possible all of the facts and circumstances pertaining to these two phases as well as all other aspects of this new military situation."

The first official word of the reich's swift hammer blows on the Scandinavian flank reached the capital shortly after midnight from Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States minister to Norway.

"The American minister to Oslo, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, telegraphed to the department of state tonight that the foreign minister has informed her that the Norwegians fired on four German warships coming up Oslo fjord and that Norway is at war with Germany."

She reported that the British and French ministers at Oslo had requested the American legation there to take over the interests of their nations in Norway whenever evacuation was necessary.

Appeal for Calm
Germany's advance into Denmark and Norway prompted several senators today to appeal for the United States to take this latest dramatic war development calmly.

While Senator Pepper (D-Ill.) declared that "it brings the shadow of the war and conquest by force near the shores of every peaceful country in the world, including our own," Senator Norris (I-Meb.) said that "this affair is none of our business and we should keep out of it."
Norris described the march into Scandinavia as "the same old process—take whatever you have the power to take."

Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader declared: "The United States must keep calm. No

Aged Appleton Man Is Amnesia Victim; Found in Mississippi

Charles Boettcher, 86, 221 N. Richmond street, who was expected to be back in Appleton this afternoon from a visit to California, today was being treated at the Pike county Health unit, McComb, Miss., apparently the victim of amnesia.

Boettcher, who owns a tavern at 229 N. Richmond street, was found barefoot, wandering in a field at McComb. Papers in his pocket showed he was returning to Appleton on a round trip ticket from Colton, Calif.

Relatives here said they expected him this afternoon and that he had been visiting at San Bernardino, Calif., since shortly after the first of the year. They planned to contact McComb authorities this afternoon.

Election Worker Wounded, Another Beaten in Chicago

Third-Term Move Faces Second Test in Mid- west as Illinois Votes

Chicago—(AP)—One man was shot and another was slugged today within two hours after the polls were opened in Chicago.

Bright, mild weather attracted an early turnout, leading to predictions that 1,500,000 of Chicago's 1-707,879 registered voters will have voted before the closing hour.

Andrew Borkowski, 39, a Republican precinct captain in the twelfth precinct of the Twenty-first ward (southwest side), was wounded superficially in the head by a bullet which police said was fired by Mrs.
May Wilcox, 47. Police quoted her as saying:

"He made a lot of trouble all over the ward with the state's attorney's office. He knows what I mean."

The shooting was reported to have occurred in a polling place but police were unable to learn immediately whether the election was involved.

The first reported violence of the day was the slugging of a Democratic precinct worker in the thirty-sixth precinct of the Sixteenth ward by one of three men who accused him of the sidewalk near the polling place.

Chicago—(AP)—Third-term sentiment in the midwest's most popular state was measured today as Illinois voters marked ballots in the presidential preference primaries.

President Garner again faced each other in the Democratic ranks just

3 Facing Charges In Alleged Racket

Accused of 'Shaking Down' Milwaukee Coun- ty Resort Owners

Milwaukee—(AP)—Detective Captain Adolph Kraemer said he would ask warrants today against three men, charging extortion in an alleged "shakedown racket" which victimized taverns and resorts of Milwaukee.

Seven other men and three women arrested in a police roundup faced lesser charges when they could not be linked to an extortion ring believed responsible for several bombings and threats of dynamiting in recent months.

Kraemer said he would ask vagrancy warrants for four of the men, and writs charging lewd and insulting actions for the women and three other men.

Arrests were made following threats to bomb homes in Milwaukee owned by the tavern and resort operators.

Windows of several taverns in the county were shattered by bombs last fall.

Two detectives traced a telephone call spotted three to a Milwaukee tavern, spotted three men there and traced them by automobile to a specific meeting place, to which a woman operator had been ordered to send $400. Captain Kraemer announced.

Thirty persons were rounded up for questioning, but half of them were released.

Because the reaction in the mine-laying experiment was certain, it must be assumed that the allies weren't surprised, to say the least.

Nazidom today charges that "for months England and France have attempted to make a new battlefield out of Scandinavia." The allies have denied similar claims before, and will deny this.

However, the thing which matters is that a battlefield has been opened up there now. The important fact remaining to be disclosed is just how well set the allies and Germany have been to take advantage of the situation.

Germany has moved first, but it will be most surprising if the allies are slow in carrying out their promises "to extend full aid" to Norway, and to "fight the war in full association" with their new

Germany Invades Norway and Denmark; England Promises To Help as Norse Enter War

Nazi Land, Sea and Air Forces Take Part in Drive; Norwegian Resistance Reported Weakening

Berlin Says 'Protec- tion' Move to Halt 'Aggression'

DANES PASSIVE

BY LOUIS F. LOCHNER

Berlin—(AP)—Germany invaded Norway and Denmark by land, sea and air today.

Germany announced she had extended "armed protection" to these states "to counteract British aggression" against their neutrality.

Danish troops did not resist, but the Norwegians did.

This afternoon, the German high command announced that "occupation of the most important objectives in all Norway by German troops is proceeding rapidly."

Infantry troops, naval forces and air squadrons took part in the Norwegian occupation.

"At most points," said the afternoon communiqué "a slight local resistance by Norwegian troops has ceased."

A dispatch from Copenhagen by DNE, the official German news agency, said the Danish government had accepted the German "protection" with a "protest" in view of the circumstances and conditions of the protection.

Cabinet Meets
The Danish government, after receipt of a memorandum from Germany explaining the invasion, summoned the cabinet, which then agreed to acknowledge the provisions put forth in the German note.

The German radio, informing its audience of progress of the Nazi forces northward, hinted at possible blows in other quarters but did not make clear whether the Netherlands or the Balkans were meant.

Broadcasters insisted that Britain and France were determined to expand the area of conflict beyond Scandinavia and that Germany would answer "move by move."

It seemed certain Germany was keeping an especially watchful eye on the Danube to the southeast.

Beauty Shop Owners' Group President Is Named in Code Suit

Milwaukee—(AP)—Mrs. Mildred Grossman Maglowski, president of the Wisconsin Beauty Shop Owners' association, was defendant today in a suit to enforce the new state beauty shop code.

She and W. M. Bade, a barber, were ordered by Circuit Judge John C. Kleczka to show cause Friday why they should not be restrained from code violations.

Mrs. Maglowski, who uses the business name of Miss Mildred Grossman, operates beauty shops in Milwaukee. Recently she announced that she had requested all members of her association to refuse to pay license fees to the trade practice division.

The court order was issued yesterday at the request of the trade practice division, which administers and enforces the codes in four service industries of the state.

Show cause orders also were issued against Estelle Regan and Clarice Chernoff, both of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Edgar Brackett, Fond du Lac. They are charged with operating a beauty shop in the village of Fond du Lac, not in the code area, and soliciting business in the city of Fond du Lac, which is under jurisdiction of the trade practice division.

WAR SPREADS TO SCANDINAVIA

The European war spread to neutral Denmark and Norway with dramatic suddenness in the last 24 hours when Germany invaded the two nations after the allies had planned mines along the Norwegian coast to halt or shipments to Germany. Denmark accepted the invasion, but Norway answered by declaring war. England has promised help to the Norwegians. The map above shows the nations involved in the new war maneuver and the areas indicated by wavy lines) mined by the British fleet.

Berlin Report Says Danish King and Premier Appeal to People Against Untoward Acts

Berlin—(AP)—A DNE official German news agency's dispatch from Copenhagen said that King Christian and the Danish sovereign and Premier Thorvald Stauning as head of the Danish government addressed a proclamation this afternoon to the Danish people asking them to refrain from untoward acts and maintain a calm attitude, at the same time assuring the people that Denmark was submitting to German invasion under protest.

The text of the proclamation as released by DNE follows:
"To the Danish people:
"German troops tonight crossed the Danish border. Some German troops will disembark at various points in Denmark. The Danish government has decided under protest to handle the affairs of the country with dispatch and in view of the occupation to communicate the following:

Plead for Calm
"German troops which are now in this country have come in contact with armed Danish forces. It is the further duty of the people to refrain from every resistance to these troops. The Danish government will endeavor to insure the security of the people and of the Danish land in face of disastrous consequences resulting from the state of war, and consequently ask the population to maintain a calm, thoughtful attitude.

"May peace and order reign in the country. May all who have to do with the authorities observe an attitude of loyalty."
"Copenhagen, April 9, 1940."

DIES OF INJURIES
Whitehall, Wis.—Marguerite
Kay Matheson, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Matheson of York, died at a Black River Falls hospital last night as a result of injuries received Friday when run over by a truck in the family farm yard.

Sentenced to Prison On Burglary Charge
Port Washington—(AP)—A sentence of one to two years in state prison was imposed yesterday on Milton E. Sundberg, 26, a printing shop linotype operator. Sundberg pleaded guilty before County Judge Peter M. Hultas to a charge of breaking into the shop at which he was employed on March 17 and taking a small amount of money from the safe.

Cutter Sent to Aid of Vessels Caught in Ice
Cleveland—(AP)—The coast guard cutter Tahomah went to the aid of two Great Lakes freighters caught in ice today near Cleveland's water intake five miles from shore. The boats were the automobile-laden South Park, down-bound from Detroit, and the Crescent City, headed toward Detroit for a cargo of automobiles.

Oslo Surrenders, Government Moves to Hamar; British Navy Sent to Northern War Region

Chamberlain Says Fleet on Way; Accuses Nazis of Premeditation as He Pledges 'Full Aid'

Stockholm—(AP)—The city of Oslo, capital of Norway, surrendered to German forces at 4 p. m. (10 a. m. E. S. T.) today.
Dispatches reaching Stockholm said the Norwegian police chief had resigned and that he was replaced by German officials.

North of Oslo Norwegian aircraft was reported to have shot down two German planes.

The Norwegian government moved to the lake village of Hamar, north of Oslo.

The Norwegian army was reported to be guarding a defense line between Oslo and Hamar to protect the new capital and to cover the mobilization of inland towns.

Fully half of the population was reported to have left Oslo before the city surrendered to German troops.

The Germans were landed from warships along the city's harbor.

Berlin—(AP)—The German official news agency announced from Oslo tonight that a "new Norwegian government" had been formed.
The agency, DNE, stated in an Oslo dispatch that a representative of the new government read a proclamation to the Norwegian people at 8:30 p. m. local time (1:30 p. m., C.S.T.).

(Earlier dispatches had told of the German occupation of Oslo and of the departure of the government headed by Premier Johan Nygaardsvold, which was then established in the village of Hamar, to the north.)
The proclamation was read from the Oslo radio station, presumably now under German control, by Major Vidkun Quisling, head of the Norwegian Nazi party, who declared he was the head of a new government of "national assembly."

He said, according to DNE, that his new government had taken over power in Norway "in order to protect the interests of Norway at this moment."

The new government was said to be formed of professors, none of whom is known internationally.
DNE said the government of Premier Johan Nygaardsvold had resigned, and that the new "national" government had replaced it.

The agency said Norwegians were asked to make a common effort "to solve the situation."

Further resistance to the German army, Quisling told the Norwegian people, would mean "criminal destruction of property."

London—(AP)—Germany invaded neutral Norway and Denmark today in a lightning double-stroke which she said was for their "protection" against the British-French allies.

Denmark apparently yielded without resistance but Norway elected to fight. The Norwegian government moved from assaulted Oslo, ordered full mobilization and got an immediate allied guarantee of full aid.

The British navy is moving to help Norway against the German invasion. Prime Minister Chamberlain today told the house of commons

Swedish iron ore moving down the Norwegian coastal waters to Germany was the smouldering fuse which set off the bombshell and gave the allies at last their long-sought flanking position against Germany.

The German onslaught against the two Scandinavian nations early today probably came while British patrol ships were fighting a heavy fleet action with German navy units.

Silent About Battle
The British admiralty refused comment on renewed reports that such a big engagement had taken place or was still in progress, but responsible quarters felt that the German occupation was impossible unless the British fleet was being kept busy elsewhere.

British warships were known to have been patrolling the Norwegian coast, and 125 German naval vessels, ranging from small boats to heavy cruisers, were sighted yesterday in the Skagerrak.

Reports from a variety of sources including the Oslo radio; the German news agency DNE; and Mrs. J.
Borden Harriman, United States minister to Norway, pieced together this stirring list of events.

German troops simultaneously moved northward across the Danish border and landed at Copenhagen, taking over that city's citadel and radio station. There were no reports of opposition as all Denmark fell into German hands.

Planes in Battle
Four German warships tried to force the Oslo fjord, water entrance to the Norwegian capital, and were at first repelled by shore batteries.
Another attempt was made by a single ship which ran aground.

Norwegian planes battled German air raiders overhead while Copenhagen was being shelled.

New Deal's Farm Program Is Under Fire in Nebraska

Congressional Candidates Base Their Fight On the AAA

Lincoln, Neb. —(AP)—Nebraska's primary election today provided the nation with a test of the administration's farm program, plus a further indication of the mid-western popularity of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) and Thomas E. Dewey, New York, candidates for the Republican presidential nomination.

Two races—selection of a first district congressional representative to fill the unexpired term of the late Rep. George Heinke, a Republican, and the battle between Senator Edward R. Burke and Gov. R. L. Cochran for the Democratic senatorial nomination—reflect the farm program test.

Charles A. Dafeo of Tecumseh, the Democratic nominee, is an outspoken advocate of the administration's farm program, while Hyde Street, Nebraska City newspaper publisher, and former secretary to Heinke, is pledged to carry on Heinke's fight against administration agricultural policies.

Gov. Cochran has charged Burke with failure to support the New Deal's farm measures. The senator refused the assertion and contended he voted against the original AAA bill because he believed it was unconstitutional. He cited the supreme court's invalidation of the measure as his justification.

Dewey forces launched a strong attempt to offset a last-minute drive for votes by the Vandenberg faction, which was spurred by the showing Dewey made in capturing the Republican convention delegation in Wisconsin.

Lee Rankin, Dewey's Nebraska campaign manager, assured the New Yorker's national headquarters on the eve of the election "we feel confident that Nebraska voters will tomorrow repeat the fine showing of Mr. Dewey in the state of Wisconsin."

President Roosevelt is the only candidate on the Democratic preferential ballot, but his supporters are desirous of making a good showing.

Voters will select 14 delegates for the party conventions, pledged only morally to follow the expressed choice.

Shipping Men Say War Zone Extension Will Hurt U. S. Trade

New York —(AP)—Germany's sudden invasion of Norway and Denmark caught three American ships in Norwegian waters. Two others are en route and may be recalled.

Shipping men predicted that the extension of the war zone would choke off America's trade outlet to northern Europe and, incidentally, halt the sending of relief supplies to Finland.

Moore-McCormack, the only American line trading with Norway, had two ships tied up in Norwegian ports—the Flying Fish, a new $2,000,000 freighter, and the Mormacsea at Trondheim.

Another American vessel, the Charles T. McCormack, arrived yesterday at Bergen under charter with a heavy cargo of relief supplies for Finland.

Two other Moore-McCormack liners, the Mormacstar, out of New York, and the Mormacslide, out of Philadelphia, were on the high seas bound for Norway.

Court Upholds Order Forcing Company to Rehire 3 Charwomen

Madison —(AP)—An order of the former state labor board directing the Century Building Company, Inc. of Milwaukee, to rehire three discharged charwomen was affirmed today by the supreme court.

The old labor board held the women were dismissed for union activity.

The Wisconsin employment relations board, which succeeded the former labor tribunal through a 1939 reorganization act, was named defendant in the suit.

The women involved were Anna Shoman, Catherine Machak and Frances Kainick. They had paid initiation fees as members of the international building service employees union but had not paid any other union dues.

The supreme court ruled their status as union members did not figure in the board's decision that the company was guilty of unfair labor practices.

Test Tube Explodes.

Milwaukee Boy Hurt

Milwaukee —(AP)—Vincent Barany, 12, was in serious condition at a hospital today with injuries suffered in an explosion yesterday of a chemical compound sealed in a test tube.

Detectives said that the boy told them the compound had been mixed by a playmate, that he had attacked the tube to a string and was swinging it around in the backyard at his home when it struck a post and exploded.

The charge struck young Barany in the abdomen, and an x-ray examination disclosed that a metal object was imbedded there.

Ganso and Megrew to Address Art Meeting

Emil Ganso, artist-in-residence at Lawrence college, left today for the annual Iowa art conference at University of Iowa, Iowa City.

He will lecture and give demonstrations on lithography, Alden F. Megrew, assistant professor of art, will leave Thursday and lecture Friday afternoon on "Development of The Skyraider." Megrew will be assistant professor of art at University of Iowa next year.

THOMAS, KRUEGER ON SOCIALIST PRESIDENTIAL BALLOT

Rules Communists Can't be Held for Refusal to Testify

Judge Says Pair Did Not Have to Answer Dies Committee Questions

Washington —(AP)—Judge F. Dickinson Letts of federal district court upheld two Boston communists today in their contention that they had been unlawfully held in custody for refusing to answer Dies committee questions and ordered the two men set at liberty immediately.

However, the two witnesses, Philip Frankfield and Thomas F. P. O'Dea, are subject to grand jury action at a later date, as a result of a house action citing them for contempt.

The two communists were arrested on a warrant issued by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on the basis of an affidavit by Robert E. Stripling, secretary of the house committee on Un-American activities.

In his opinion, Judge Letts said, "It seems obvious that congress intended no such action by any individual." The judge added that Stripling, as an employee of the committee, had no power to institute proceedings, nor did any individual member of the committee.

Sol H. Cohn, attorney for Frankfield and O'Dea, contended in a habeas corpus hearing before Letts that the "single method" prescribed by law for contempt citations was that the committee notify the house, the house pass a resolution, the house clerk notify the district attorney and the district attorney take the case to the grand jury.

Justice Letts upheld Cohn in that contention and said the defendants had been "unlawfully restrained."

The court declared that "congress was dealing with political questions and had in mind the protection of its citizens . . . from unfair treatment." It was apparent, the court continued, that congress did not intend to leave discretion in such political matters to any individual.

Oslo Is 7th Capital Taken Under German Wing in About 2 Years

By the Associated Press

The fall of Oslo and Copenhagen today brought two more European capitals under Nazi sway.

In little more than two years gray-clad Nazi legions have swept through these capitals signifying conquest of Austria, Czechoslovakia, the Memel territory and Poland in this order:

Vienna—March 13, 1938.
Prague—March 15, 1939.
Memel—March 22, 1939.
Free City of Danzig—Sept. 7, 1939
Warsaw—Sept. 27, 1939.
And now Oslo and Copenhagen.

Richard Nowicki, 21, route 2, Seymour, is confined to a Green Bay hospital with severe burns reported to have been caused by a gasoline explosion. Nowicki was brought to a physician at Pulaski last night and the youth was taken to Green Bay in an ambulance. His companion, who said he was Alvin Brass, Black Creek, suffered less severe burns.

Socialists Begin Campaign to Get Ticket on Ballots

Washington —(AP)—Socialist party delegates returned home today to start petition-signing campaigns to get their presidential ticket of Norman Thomas and Maynard C. Krueger on at least 30 state ballots.

Their 3-day convention ended late yesterday after resolutions were adopted denouncing Dies committee activities as "witch-hunting" and Russian totalitarianism as "ruthless."

A 700-word single-paragraph platform also was approved unanimously. Among other things it declared:

"To the whole world let America say: 'We will not share in the collective suicide of your wars. We will, to the best of our ability, aid the victims of war and oppression. We will seek with all neutrals at the first appropriate occasion to mediate in behalf of negotiated peace.'"

"And to make peace effective we will cooperate in disarmament and in all economic arrangements which will lessen the strain of insecurity and exploitation upon the peoples of all the world."

Superior Man Named Head of Zor Shrine

Madison —(AP)—Thomas B. Thompson, wife of the United States Forest Service, was elected superior representative of Zor Shrine temple at a special election here last night. He succeeded the late Fred Swinbank, of Wausau. Plans for Zor's ceremonial at Eau Claire July 11 and subsequent pilgrimage to Superior and Duluth were approved.

Both of these are "preludes" to a transactions tax or a gross income tax, which are almost synonymous.

McNutt installed the gross income tax in Indiana and has had experience with it. One of his aides told Townsend a year or so ago that he did not believe such a tax would be feasible on a national basis. McNutt is likely to take the same view.

a week after their initial joust in Wisconsin where the president finished in front, 3 to 1.

Thomas E. Dewey of New York, fresh from a Wisconsin victory over Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, had the Republican field to himself in Illinois.

Fair skies and moderate temperatures bolstered predictions of a record primary vote of more than 3,000,000 during polling hours from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m. (C.S.T.) The high mark of 2,674,713 was established in 1936.

State Contests

Nine statewide nominations were at stake, including those for governor and United States senator.

Factional fights in both major parties heightened interest in these contests.

The preferential results are only advisory for the 50 convention delegates elected today. Together with eight others to be chosen in state conventions, the delegates comprise the third largest bloc in the nation.

Dewey said he would count on the Republican delegation's backing if he polled a big vote. Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago declared the Democratic delegates would be President Roosevelt's as long as he wanted them.

President Roosevelt's name was reled over a job.

Hint Paul McNutt Has Pension Plan

Talked Out of Making It Known at Recent Industrial Conference

BY W. B. RAGSDALE

Washington —(AP)—Pension advocates are spreading the word that Paul V. McNutt leans toward a general old age pension plan.

One pension group already is calling his position the most forward stride in social security made by any presidential candidate.

Then pension forces base their opinion on a speech which McNutt, the federal security administrator, made before the national industrial conference board 10 days ago. What they may not know is that McNutt is likely to go considerably farther in the direction of a general pension plan before the campaign goes into the crucial stages.

The Indianapolis had planned to go farther than he did in his industrial conference board speech, but advisors talked him out of it. They apparently achieved, however, only a postponement of a full expression of his pension views.

McNutt's past performances do not indicate that he may be expected to give anything like a full endorsement of such a proposal as the Townsend plan or the general welfare act. Both of these are "preludes" to a transactions tax or a gross income tax, which are almost synonymous.

McNutt installed the gross income tax in Indiana and has had experience with it. One of his aides told Townsend a year or so ago that he did not believe such a tax would be feasible on a national basis. McNutt is likely to take the same view.

Masquerades were the fashion at the court of King Edward III of England about 1340.

entered without his formal consent by the Chicago Democratic organization headed by Mayor Kelly and National Committeeman P. A. Nash. Unlike his opponent, the president submitted no certificate of candidacy.

Third-Term Drive

The Kelly-Nash organization has joined with the downstate forces of Governor Henry Horner in pushing the third-term movement in pushing a state slate headed by Harry Hersey, gubernatorial candidate. The president likewise has the support of an "insurgent" Democratic faction.

Garner supporters figured that anything less than an overwhelming victory by the president could be construed as a check to the third-term movement. The Dewey forces hoped to roll up a substantial vote that would head the state toward the Republican column in November.

Citizens who voted in the primary of one of the major parties last year are required by law to vote in the same party today. This restriction affects many who switched party affiliations in 1939 primaries to decide local contests.

Two violent deaths marked the end of the campaign yesterday. State Representative A. Andrew Torrence, a Negro Republican, was shot and slashed while in his Chicago campaign headquarters by Cornelius Woodward, a Negro and former precinct captain, who then committed suicide by taking poison. Investigators said they had quarreled over a job.

Buckman Trial Is Postponed Again At Request of U. S.

Week's Delay Asked; Defendants May Seek Another Postponement

Madison —(AP)—Federal Judge Charles G. Briggie, of Springfield, Ill., granted a government motion late yesterday to postpone opening the trial of 11 former officers and employees of B. E. Buckman and Company from May 6 to May 13 and defense counsel indicated further delay would be asked.

The defendants, indicted by a grand jury last August following collapse of the Madison investment firm, were charged with mail fraud and securities law violations.

Opening of the trial was set for May 6 at the arraignments here last month before Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy, of Milwaukee, summoned to relieve District Judge Patrick T. Stone, who had disqualified himself. U. S. District Attorney John J. Boyle requested a week's delay because of other business requiring his attention.

Disclosure of possible defense moves to prevent starting the trial May 13 came from attorney L. Hugo Keller, of Milwaukee, who told the court two defendants whom he represents were critically ill. He said James C. Casey, of Green Bay, former Buckman branch manager, was in such a serious condition he might never be brought to trial and that Louis F. Bracy, of Oshkosh, former Buckman salesman, had suffered two strokes.

Attorney Fred R. Wright, representing Frank Sholota, now of Chicago and former Milwaukee office manager for the Buckman company, said testimony of Casey and Bracy was vital to his client's defense and that if they were unable to appear he would demand further postponement.

The indictment charged Casey and Bracy advised some of the other defendants to sell certain stocks.

Trial date discussion concluded a hearing on defense motions for a bill of particulars. Judge Briggie, who was sitting in the case for the first time, took the requests under advisement.

GOP Never Kept Faith With Farmer

That's Claim of Rep. Hook, Michigan Democrat, in Radio Talk

Washington —(AP)—Representative Hook (D-Mich.) asserted yesterday that "the Republican party has never kept faith with the farmer, and it never will."

In a prepared radio address (ABC) praising the administration's farm program, Hook declared that for 50 years the Republican party "was so little concerned with his (the farmer's) welfare that it did not even mention him in its platforms, secure in the belief that a safe majority of farmers were traditionally Republican and would stay put, in spite of political neglect and exploitation of their interests."

He said farmers "have it in their power to say whether we are to continue the New Deal with its nation-wide farm program under the AAA, a program that has steadily and surely pulled agriculture out of the morass of low prices and low income, or whether to try some new-fangled plan to be offered by that party which for more than half a century, under the guise of a protective tariff, has promised agricultural equality with other industry and has never fulfilled that promise."

Motorist Fined $10 On Speeding Charge

William A. Dorschner, route 1, Fremont, pleaded guilty of speeding when he appeared in municipal court of Judge Thomas H. Ryan yesterday afternoon and was fined $10 and costs. He was arrested by city police on W. Prospect avenue.

Earl McKeeffry, 1002 1/2 W. Oklahoma street, and Norman Rehmer, 917 W. Elsie street, arrested by city police, were fined $1 and costs each for violating the city parking ordinance.

Aviator Describes Eruption Of Volcano, Flow of Lava as Airplane Circles Overhead

(Editor's note: The following eyewitness account of the Mauna Loa volcano eruption was transmitted by radio-telephone exclusively to the Associated Press by Captain R. F. Travis as he and his crew flew over and around the volcano.)

BY CAPTAIN R. F. TRAVIS
U. S. Army Air Corps
Honolulu —(AP)—Lava was driven with the lightness of foam from a small fissure down the side of Mauna Loa as army bombers soared above.

Up out of the fissure came lava—pitching, gushing, leaping upwards like rough seas driven against a seawall.

In this molten lava could be seen dark objects which maybe were rocks.

The floor of the main fire pit was spider-webbed with red lines where the outer surface lava had split and broken.

Spectacular Flair

At one end of the pit was a spectacular fall, big as Niagara, of molten lava from a fissure over the edge of the main pit. Lava flowed down the mountainside in four streams, progress being plainly visible from our plane.

Average height of the lava fountain was probably only 50 feet, but a few particularly strong ones must have reached several times that height.

Returning to the crater for a daylight view was an anticlimax. The floor of the main fire pit was not covered yet, and it looked like cooling fudge, a bit mottled, of blue-black color with spots of red.

In the daylight, the lava resembled red water seen in some southern mainland streams. South of the main fire pit are two smaller craters, the flow being east of them and there being no lava emptying into one of them. But in the other one, two lava streams were emptying.

On this north edge, however, there is a very low retaining rim, and it wouldn't take much to push over the edge and start the trek toward Hilo.

There were four main columns of smoke in the crater and a half-dozen smaller columns over the edge, rising in blue-black shades to a mushroom cloud some thousand feet higher.

My photographer has just signaled to me that he is through, and as I leave Mauna Loa behind, I look back and the rift of lava resembles the advancing edge of a forest fire.

As Maui, Molokai and Hawaii islands pass beneath and I see beautiful shades of green against the amethyst blue Pacific it's hard to realize what I just had seen on Mauna Loa represented their birth centuries ago.

Garner Leader in Texas Is Asked to Discuss New Deal

Austin Democrat Wants To Know Where Vice President Stands

Austin, Tex. —(AP)—A. J. Wirtz, Austin, under-secretary of the interior, today called upon E. B. Garner of Dallas, leader of the Garner-for-president forces, to declare whether he is for the New Deal.

"No Democrat can be or should be elected president," Wirtz said in a press statement. "I am for the New Deal and against the Harding-Coolidge-Germany-New Deal but." If Gene (Germany) is going to scrap any part of it then what part is he going to scrap? The people are entitled to know, but I am afraid the people of Texas will never know, because it is the Garner strategy to tell them nothing about the real issues."

Wirtz renewed his attack on Garner's statement after the Wisconsin primary last week.

"Gene says I misconstrued his statement," the federal official said. "Then I should like for him to tell the people what he meant when he said that the combined Garner and Republican vote in Wisconsin was greater than the Roosevelt vote. Therefore, this demonstrated that Roosevelt could not be elected for another term. If this does not mean that the Garner votes would go Republican in the event Roosevelt is nominated, then what does it mean? Gene will you please explain?"

"I have simply said that I believe the Democrats of the nation would draft the president for another term, in order to be assured of a continuance of the New Deal. The results in Wisconsin, New York and Maine, and the results that he will receive from the Illinois primary today, bear out my prediction."

Milwaukee GOP Is Opposed to Heil Poll

Milwaukee —(AP)—Lansing Hoyt, chairman of the Milwaukee county voluntary organization of the Republican party, declared his opposition today to the action of a group of G. O. P. county chairmen who plan a state-wide poll of Governor or Julius P. Heil's popularity as a candidate for re-election next fall.

Twelve county chairmen decided upon the survey at a meeting in Wisconsin Rapids.

Hoyt issued this statement: "I did not attend the Wisconsin Rapids meeting, but if I had, we would have seen to it that the silly declaration about testing Governor Heil's popularity by means of a survey would never have come to a vote."

"The entire Milwaukee county Republican organization is for Heil. He will be nominated and re-elected by a huge plurality."

"To think that 12 out of 71 county chairmen have the nerve to thus exhibit their colossal conceit is a reflection on their fitness for office."

The following passage was taken from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Lulled by stupifying illusions, the world is asleep in the cradle of infancy, dreaming away the hours. Material sense does not unfold the facts of existence; but spiritual sense lifts human consciousness into eternal truth. Humanity advances slowly out of sinning sense into spiritual understanding; unwillingness to learn all things rightly, binds Christendom with chains."

HEALTH

FOODS

Health foods are not only dietetic foods, as some may believe, but are UNREFINED, wholesome, vitamin and mineral-filled foods that every human being should and must have to maintain perfect health. Many renowned authorities have proven that a staggeringly LARGE percentage of sickness and disease is caused by improper foods and diets. They teach that we should eat only foods which have not been COMMERCIALLY PRESERVED, PROCESSED, BLEACHED, and DEMINERALIZED. ## Production Staff Selected for CYO Comedy April 21

Fr. Woelfel, Monroe Romanesko in Charge of
'Bolts and Nuts'

Kaukauna—The production staff for "Bolts and Nuts," CYO comedy to be presented April 21, has been selected by Monroe Romanesko, production chairman, and the Rev. Leonard Woelfel, director. The "Bolts" of the title refer to the nuts of the play, with the "Nuts" the mentally unbalanced persons under their care.

Orrin Romanesko, Peter Linell and Robert Nielsen are working on posters and other advertising of the odd characters held together under a single roof. Properties which range from smelly corn cob pipes to cast shovels and rakes, will be collected by Jerome Yangling. Miss Mary Renn will again handle the costumes.

Dorothy Schwaab and Richard Steffen are promoters, which the Green Room Artists of the high school, in charge of Miss Ethelyn Handran, have volunteered their services for make-up.

Their duties include making a Negro out of Clifford Fernald, giving Charles Weber a neatly clipped Van Dyke beard, furnishing Robert Dougherty with a disheveled wig, and in the play, including false whiskers and heavy black eyebrows, furnishing Boniface Proctor a beard and Francis Wagner a semi-bald wig. Other members of the cast are Joyce Roberts, Lois Wiesler, Geraldine Bieweler, Amelia Boucher, Virginia Faust, Dolores Van Camp, Betty Lee and Herbert Weber.

Paving Is Asked For Two Streets

Petitions in Circulation
For Construction of Concrete Surface

Kaukauna—Petitions are being circulated on Desnoyer and Island streets asking the common council that the streets be paved. The petitions ask for a pavement 31 feet wide from back to curb to back of curb, of good construction and of a type known as the 9-6-9 concrete slab.

In consideration for the paving the residents agree to pay the city as a special assessment a rate not to exceed $1.77 per running foot for each side of the streets. Those that do not have a permanent curb in front of their property agree to pay an additional 12 cents per running foot for curbing.

The signers agree to pay for the roadways within 30 days after being notified of their completion, and if the payment is not made authorize that the cost of the improvement be entered as a special assessment against the property, payable over a period of 5 years.

"We know and understand that the paving shall be done by means of a duly approved WPA project," the petition concludes.

Large Crowd Will See School Boxers

Kimberly Squad to Invade Kaukauna for Return Engagement Tonight

Kaukauna—The largest crowd of the season is expected at the high school gym tonight as Kimberly High boxers come here for a return match. At Kimberly recently Coach Clifford H. Kemp's mittmen pounded out a 7 1/2 to 3 1/2 victory, and are undefeated in two years.

Special interest centers around tonight's match between Karl Giordana, Kaukauna High's best athlete, and Tony Van Stralen of Kimberly, who in his home ring was the first to win a match from Giordana. Giordana had had little time to get in condition, however, and with an easy victory last week over Patrick Oshkosh is expected to carry the fight to Van Stralen tonight.

Three Kaukauna boxers have won all of their matches this season. Jack Roberts, 92 pounds, captain Gordon Henrich, 108 pounds, and Don Keil, 124 pounds, have yet to be beaten. Jack Byrnes has won two and lost one, as have John Velte and George Reichelt. Reichelt was on his way to winning his third against Oshkosh when a cut above his eye forced his retirement. Velte's only loss came in the heavy-weight battle against Oshkosh, when a win would have meant the match for Kaukauna instead of a tie. Velte was all over his opponent the last round, but could not overcome first and second round deficits.

Oregon and Washington Still Democratic but Strength Is Less Than in '36, Poll Shows

By Institute of Public Opinion
Princeton, N. J. — Although the Republicans swept the Oregon elections of 1938, a state-wide survey just completed there by the American Institute of Public Opinion indicates that Oregon is leaning to the Democratic party again at the present time, with a small majority favoring a Democratic president next November.

A similar survey in the neighboring state of Washington shows that state in the Democratic column also, and by a slightly larger margin. Voters in the two states were asked: "Which party would you like to see win the presidential election this year?" The replies of those who have made up their minds on the issue are:

OREGON VOTERS
Favoring Democrats 53%
Favoring Republicans 47%

WASHINGTON VOTERS
Favoring Republicans 43%

An average of one person in eight said he was undecided.

Democratic Drop
Oregon and Washington, which share one of the New Deal's biggest electric power developments—Bonneville Dam on the Columbia river—were overwhelming for President Roosevelt in 1936. But the Democrats received a shock two years ago when Oregon turned around and elected a Republican governor and senator in what was apparently part of a nation-wide conservative swing.

Even now, when both states appear to be on the Democratic side in the Institute's surveys, Democratic strength in Oregon is 15 points below President Roosevelt's vote in the last election, and in Washington 12 points below the vote for FDR.

See Page 93
April 13th
SATURDAY EVENING POST

The trend in the two states is shown in the following figures:

OREGON

1936 Presidential Election 63% 32%

1938 Congressional Election 41 59

TODAY'S SURVEY 53 47

WASHINGTON

1936 Presidential Election 69% 31%

1938 Congressional Elections 61 39

TODAY'S SURVEY 57 43

It would appear from the present surveys that while Democratic strength has turned upwards in Oregon since the mid-term elections, the Democratic trend is still slightly downward in Washington. Asked whether they thought they would vote for President Roosevelt if he runs for a third term, 55 per cent of the Oregon voters with opinions on the question said "No." In Washington 50 per cent said they were for a third term—as of today—while 50 per cent were opposed.

home, we longed for news of the family. Consulting the directory, we found we could talk to the family for less than $2.00. A call was placed, and from a distance of over a thousand miles, the connection was completed and we were talking with our family in less than four minutes' time. One can't help but marvel at the efficiency of a system that can complete the complicated arrangements of letting two people talk to each other from opposite ends of the United States in so short a time and at such a low cost. It is hard to believe.

"This is a personal experience . . . but what of the local man who calls up his mother in Ireland every New Year's Eve? What joy he brings to his mother's heart, and how happy he is to hear his mother's voice! And all at a cost that is unbelievably small.

"This sounds like a paid advertisement for the telephone company, but we don't mean it as such. The telephone means so much to us and to other people, that it is a temptation that we can't resist to give praise where praise is due.

"If, for this telephone service, we were forced to pay prohibitive costs, it would be a different story . . . in fact, there would be no story. But when you can talk to dear ones a thousand miles away at a cost well within the reach of all, it is a story that should be told."

Progressives Out To Regain Ground Lost in '38 Vote

Outcome of This Year's Campaign May Decide Third Party's Fate

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Decision of the leaders of the Progressive party to hold the first party convention in six years can be interpreted as a sign that the Progressives intend to begin early in their 1940 campaign to regain the ground lost to a resurgent Republican organization in 1938, Capitol observers concluded today.

Ostensibly to celebrate the birth of the Progressive party in Fond du Lac six years ago, Progressives will rally on May 19 to set up a campaign effort in which the outcome is more crucial to the future power and influence of the third party group than any other in recent years. A defeat for the LaFollette organization this year, the retirement of the present head of the party, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, to private life after 15 years of service in the United States senate, may well spell the permanent relegation of the Progressives to minority status in state politics, political circles believe.

The first objective of the highest ranking Progressive leaders is the reelection of Senator LaFollette to his third regular term. That other political elements recognize that concern among Progressives is shown in the tentative offers of a coalition which have been made several times in the last few months by Wisconsin New Deal Democrats.

Recognize Need

Although some of the men generally recognized as dominating personalities in the inner organization of the Progressive party are represented as unenthusiastic about the state campaign and the control of the statehouse, they recognize at the same time that a strong state ticket is essential to Senator LaFollette's chances for reelection.

Factors figuring in the attitude of the leaders toward the state picture include the improbability that the party can control the state legislature, even if it carries the state ticket, and the critical state treasury situation. Progressives generally recognize that the administration elected this year will have to reckon with the necessity of sponsoring severe tax legislation early in the 1941 session of the legislature.

However, that feeling among some of the leaders has not prevented an anxious scrambling by half a dozen candidates for governor for advantage in getting the nomination. It is expected that one of the objectives of the May 19 rally will be an agreement among those aspirants looking toward a harmonious campaign.

Fund Available to Buy New Uniforms

Council at Marion Turns Over $320; New Band Shell to be Built

Marion — Officers of the Band Boosters' association, met with the city council, Thursday evening to ask for a contribution, toward some new uniforms for the high school band. The members of the council voted to turn over $820 to the association, of which $320 is to be cash and $500 to be used toward the construction of a band shell in the local park, which is to be a WPA project.

At the spring election in 1933, a referendum was voted on to contribute $400 a year to the city band for giving 10 concerts and for playing for other public events, the $400 to be placed in the tax roll each year. The city band disbanded and the same amount was to be paid the high school band for playing concerts, etc. The association had already drawn $380 from this fund.

The Band Boosters are planning to purchase new uniforms for the band to go to Kaukauna to the tournament in May. The band consists of 55 members.

Dewey Doesn't Say Where He Stands, but He Gets Votes

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
New York—Such are the curious ways of American politics that it comes to pass that the man who now seems to be the favorite for the Republican presidential nomination is the one whose real views about national and international affairs are least known.

Thomas E. Dewey has been lead man in the polls for months, and the Wisconsin primary results appear to support the accuracy of the polls. Still nobody knows much about Mr. Dewey's policies or whether he has any deeply rooted convictions.

Probably Mr. Dewey resents such a statement, and he may know where he stands, but I have had trouble in New York finding anyone else who knew. He is against defeatism and has endorsed optimism. Beyond that, it is mostly fog surrounded by words. Mr. Dewey has talked enough but he has said little about his own policies. Some label him as progressive, others as conservative. Quite generally the feeling exists that he has not tipped his hand, and guesses as to what it will look like eventually are conflicting. Yet it doesn't appear to matter. Mr. Dewey apparently can get the votes without saying anything. He has a wonderful radio voice.

Some weeks ago Mr. Dewey was speaking approvingly of the Roosevelt foreign policy in general. But in Wisconsin the other day he said we must keep completely out of the affairs of Europe, not only out of the war but out of negotiations. When he returned to New York he was on the record as being about as isolationist as Senator Vandenberg. Yet his close friends say with conviction that Mr. Dewey is not an isolationist and doesn't want to be known as one, that he recognizes American responsibility in world affairs and does not believe we should or could escape it.

He attacks the results of the Hull reciprocal treaties, but favors the principle—and then wants senate ratification required, which is only a devious way of trying to kill the whole scheme. This trick of demanding senate ratification is the indirect method adopted by a wrecking crew which lacked the nerve to fight the Hull plan head-on.

Mr. Dewey made a devastating indictment of relief in his Chicago speech yet his friends say that the abuses which Mr. Dewey singled out were largely those of local politicians and that conditions would have been worse without federal control. They are positive that Mr. Dewey does not favor turning relief back to the states so long as federal money must be spent.

Vandenberg, Taft Have Had To Show Hands

Mr. Dewey has been more fortunate than Senators Vandenberg and Taft. They have had to cast votes and take definite positions on many national questions. Mr. Dewey can leave large blank spaces in his personal platform, and is leaving them. That is to be expected. Politicians generally follow the rule of avoiding commitments as much as they can. The less one says as a candidate, the fewer enemies he makes and the fewer inhibitions he has after assuming office.

Success in politics is a mysterious process that obeys no formula. Coolidge and Roosevelt achieved success and they had nothing in com-

30 Lithographs in Lawrence Exhibit

Works of Accomplished French and American Artists Shown

A valuable exhibition of lithographs loaned by the Wayne Gallery of New York city is on display in the Lawrence college library.

Obtained through the efforts of Emil Ganso, artist-in-residence at the college, the exhibit will be shown through April 30.

It is the most representative show of the modern French and American artists that Lawrence has had in the field of graphic arts.

Among the 30 lithographs by artists of international reputation are those of Picasso, Pascin, Matisse, Derain, and Maillol of the French school; and Peggy Bacon, Adolf Dohn, Ernest Flenne, Reginald Marsh, and Kunisada, of the Americans. This group represents most of the greatest artists of the twentieth century.

DON'T INVESTIGATE RELIEF

We have hope that no detailed investigation in the usual judicial manner will ever take place of the billions squandered in this country through the rank carelessness and worse of the Roosevelt regime.

Since the entire country realizes that the LaFollette description of a "spoon-fed, coddled" mass of people was conservative in the extreme, it is best to let it go at that because our confidence in democracy will be shaken and the fair name of democracy shamed the world over if the complete details are ever gathered and published.

To sustain this opinion we need only point to the worn evidence already collected and presented before an Assembly Investigating Committee in California. Members of the committee have sat transfixed in amazement. The situation has long since passed the laughing state. From one day's testimony—and there have been weeks of it—we select the following: Truck drivers paid $110.00 a month and keep were sent on three hundred mile trips with loads as little as "five or six sacks of Bull Durham" and at other times with $1.00 to $1.50 worth of groceries. A two mile water pipe line was built at a cost of $20,000.00 when it was discovered that its outlet was higher than its intake, so another plan was adopted and another pipe line built. During a cold spell at Camp Benicia "first grade lumber was used for fire wood" although forests were available if men were willing to pick up down timber. There also a drainage system was installed with nine sections of terra cotta piping of 300 feet each but "we never could get it to work." A nearby farmer at this camp offered to give its residents 200 tons of tomatoes if they would send men to pick them but "they didn't seem to want to do that." The witness said the tomatoes were "gorgeous."

For running this particular camp in this perfectly Russian manner, the superintendent's salary of $140.00 a month and keep was raised to $200.00 and his assistants were also given 20 per cent increases. At Sharp's Park the migrants thought a grand and glorious government should encourage them in keeping in touch with the home folks. They used the long distance telephone constantly although it should be said they were brief enough so that the highest single message was only $14.00.

At Camp Natoma a warehouse, costing thousands of dollars, was constructed "almost to completion" when it was decided to rent a warehouse in Oakland and further "thousands were spent repairing it."

Aliens all get cash relief because WPA can not accept them. It was "nothing at all to see from a hundred to a thousand men paralyzed drunk" at any of the migrant camps "around pay day."

Unhappily what has been printed above is standard of form. The disgraceful mistreatment of their government by such a substantial percentage of those needing its assistance is enough to condemn the system employed as woefully inadequate and impractical.

An official survey by the State Relief Administration in the same state shows that approximately 30 per cent of those on relief cannot be induced to register for employment, will not work under any circumstances, and tell Administration officials in one way or another to "go peddle your papers, we haven't got time to be bothered." It should be understood that in this figure is not included either the ill or those in need of physical rehabilitation. But it should be said that approximately 25 per cent were definitely written down as "eager for work."

BULLITT GOES TO PARIS

The Administration suddenly discovered that France has pressing need of Ambassador Bullitt's presence although we have no Ambassador at all to Germany.

And so Mr. Bullitt took to one of the Atlantic clippers just as demands were climbing high in the Senate for a chance to ask him some questions concerning the charges that have developed from what was said to have been discovered in the Polish archives.

In apparent attempt to placate the American people, the Democratic members of the Foreign Relations Committee held a jolly dinner with Mr. Bullitt at which he declared that the charges were "all damned lies." It wasn't considered safe to have a Republican present. A Republican might have asked questions. The Democrats only raised their beakers high and toasted Mr. Bullitt's safe return to la belle France in good French wine.

The procedure resembles that adopted at other times and places when men say "I refuse to answer" or "my counsel advises me to reserve answer" and similar pleas which may be true and justified, but also carry a little color of suspicion.

Probably too, due affect must be given to the assertion in important quarters that no one, mind you that, no one, has the right to examine Mr. Bullitt. This theory follows the assertion that Mr. Bullitt is not strictly speaking an Ambassador of the United States. He is merely a legate of Mr. Roosevelt's.

There is nothing in the present day inappropriate about this trend. We may start with "my Ambassadors" and end up with "my army, my navy and my loyal subjects."

CHILDHOOD WORRIES

Within the current number of an educational publication issued under the formidable name of, "Journal of Genetic Psychology," appears a report which should be both instructive and interesting to all parents who are earnestly trying to do the best job they can in rearing their children.

The article reports the results of a survey made of 540 fifth and sixth grade children to reveal their chief worries. And anyone who thinks children are perpetually carefree and have no worries has forgotten his own childhood.

Answering 53 questions put to them, both boys and girls placed fear of failing a test as their number one worry. The boys and the girls also agreed on their next two chief worries, which should be quite complimentary to mother. Number two worry was about "mother working too hard" and number three was "mother getting sick." From here on the boys and girls differed on several questions.

The boys, for instance, placed fear of being blamed for something they did not do as number four worry while being late for school and getting sick were tied in this position in the girls' answers. Among other worries high up on the list were: Father working too hard; having a poor report card; being scolded; spoiling good clothes; people telling lies about you; saying the wrong thing.

An encouraging note is that among the least worries were such fears as being kidnapped and the world coming to an end. And very last in the ranking by both boys and girls was fear of witches.

The value of the report lies in the insight it gives into the workings of young minds. Knowing what the worries of childhood are in these times, and they differ somewhat from the worries of past generations, wise parents will know where to apply counter treatment. Worry will never be eliminated from either adult or childhood thoughts, but at least its harmful effects may be minimized.

SOUTHWARD HO!

Now that the business and entertainment fields have felt that pinch of war, and are no longer able to import from Europe the novelties that have been prized and popular, these groups too are turning southward. Announcement has been made that practical application of our "Good Neighbor" policy will be made at the New York World's Fair of 1940. Wholesale and retail business firms from all the country are cooperating with government agencies in formulating plans for special displays and they will watch closely the reaction of Fair visitors to these exhibits from the other countries of the Western Hemisphere.

The other Americas have much to offer us, and their civilizations and cultures have produced many items which ours has not, but which we might import to as much advantage as many wares of the Old World.

While this venture is being backed by business, it can show signs of profit in other ways and serve to cement a feeling of understanding with our friends to the south.

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—One of the great military lessons already taught by the European war is the crucial importance of air power. It is a lesson, however, that seems to be lost on certain United States navy master minds.

Several weeks ago The Washington Merry-Go-Round revealed how, while congress was voting tens of millions of dollars for new naval aircraft and personnel, navy brass hats were preparing to retire eight of the service's top flyers because they are not Annapolis graduates. Current events have added another example of this underlying antipathy toward the air force on the part of high-placed seadogs.

Today, in the vast and strategically vital Hawaiian area of the Pacific, the great battle fleet of the United States is engaged in its most important war maneuvers since the World War. Many new ships, aircraft carriers and planes are being tested on the basis of lessons gained from the European conflict.

So important are the games that Secretary Charles Edison is personally attending them. But the No. 2 flying officer of the navy, Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, commander of the Aircraft Scouting Force, is not.

A large part of Admiral Cook's command, carriers and planes, are engaged in the crucial maneuvers, but he is far away on the other side of the ocean. A few days ago, accompanied by his entire staff, he steamed out of San Diego aboard his flagship, the Cruiser Memphis, on a leisurely inspection cruise that will take him through the Panama canal, the Gulf of Mexico and on up to Norfolk, Va., and Washington.

UNUSED FLAG-PLANE
Why he, his entire staff, and flagship should be absent from the important Pacific battle tests is a mystery. Equally unexplained was the action last year of Admiral Claude C. Bloch, then commander-in-chief of the fleet, in refusing to allow Cook to use a 4-motor plane on which $80,000 of taxpayers' money had been spent to fit it up as Cook's flag-ship.

The ship, one of the few of its type in the navy, was equipped with bunks, galley, water tanks, desks, carpets and other furnishings to accommodate Cook and his staff. Its purpose was to eliminate the heavy cost of using a large transport to transport Cook and his staff, also to free the cruiser for other missions.

But Bloch, who has never been up in the air and who once refused to allow seaplane squadrons to make test flights across the country from the Pacific to the Atlantic, hit the ceiling when the plane arrived at San Diego. He ordered Cook not to use it, and for six months it remained idle in a hangar. It was still there when Cook sailed on the Memphis.

Note—Cook is one of five "flying admirals" who draw between $3,000 and $4,000 a year flying pay but are not allowed to take up or land a ship. When they fly they are always accompanied by a special pilot assigned to them.

HEART BREAKER

The well-laid plans of Finnish Minister Hjalmar Procopio to outwit the press at his wedding misfired, but the tall, handsome diplomat did manage to inject some privacy into the affair—much to the local annoyance of the photographers.

The day of the wedding, Procopio left strict orders with his staff to stall the press until a half hour after the ceremony, by which time he and his British bride would be well on their way out of town. The staff obeyed orders, but Procopio overlooked one leak. An employee in the county clerk's office at Fairfax, Va., where the marriage license was secured, also is the local correspondent of a Washington paper.

Result was that when Procopio and his bride-to-be arrived at the Fairfax home of State Department Counselor R. Walton Moore for the big event, they were met by a grinning battery of reporters and lensmen.

Procopio was much put out, though he finally agreed to "a few shots." But when a "kiss the bride" pose was suggested, he bristled.

"That," he said, "is for private."

"But who ever heard of a wedding picture without a kiss?" objected a cameraman. "Say, I wonder how you ever got such a reputation as a heart breaker with the Washington gals. You sure have changed."

CAPITAL CHAFF

Despite the alleged new deal in the justice department, that outfit has just permitted the resignation of James Hoffa, the man who already had collected half a million of back taxes from big alcohol companies which fledged on taxes during Prohibition days. . . . Powerful friends of the alcohol companies have been at work for a long time to get these dropped. A lot more remain to be collected—but probably they won't. . . . Jim Farley's green ink is contagious. Ambitious young political organizations, among them the Roosevelt Clubs, Inc. of southwest Missouri, now use it for signing all correspondence. . . . Hard-hitting Sam Jones, soon to be the reform governor of Louisiana, probably will circumscribe the Huey Long senators in Washington by having his own men keep an eye on things here. Slated for an important part in this set-up is Harry Costello, who had a lot to do with the upset of the Huey Long machine.

CHARLEY DAWES

Ex-Vice President Charley Dawes, who from his seat in Evanston, Ill., grows about his ambition to come back and balance the budget, used to have almost everyone in Washington terrified—with one notable exception.

She was Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the publisher of The Washington Post, whose husband once was associated with Dawes on the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Meyer was then governor of the federal reserve board, and as such, sat in as a RFC director.

He and Dawes never got along well, and their feud extended to Mrs. Meyer. Once, seated beside Mrs. Meyer at dinner, Charley Dawes was giving her this line:

"If I just had the brains and background your husband has, Mrs. Meyer, I'd be began."

"You wouldn't know what to do with them," General," shot back his dinner partner.

Note—During one RFC director's meeting, General Dawes was pounding the table, delivering a harangue to his associates, when Eugene Meyer interrupted: "The public is not present, General."

MY DOG

My dog will never win a ribbon
At the kennel show.
She has no haughty ancestry,
No proud, exclusive pedigree to do with them,
But what her friendship means to me,
My dog will never know!

She's just a stray who came to give me
Love and loyalty.
She had no other gifts to bring.
For she was a poor homeless thing,
When she scratched at my door one spring
To beg a home from me!

My dog has never been a winner,
For she has no part
In any world except the one Where I am! When the day is done,
I see her, coming on the run,
To bring me her true heart!

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—The capital certainly has cashed in on that gift from Tokyo—the Japanese cherry trees.

Stinnett

That might arise in those cities seem trivial. From February on, committees from the board of trade, merchants, innkeepers, historical societies and transportation companies are in constant session with the weatherman, horticulturists and the park department. The problem is: When will the cherry blossoms blossom?

If They're Wrong

Record for years back show the capital's 3,000 cherry trees have burst their buds anywhere from March 20 (single blossom trees and the only kind in the Tidal Basin, where they always take those pictures) to May 1 (the double-blossom varieties). With five weeks to guess in, you can see what a problem the capital fathers have picking a day. When they pick wrong there's nothing to do but postpone the blessed event.

Once they have hit on a date, though, the mills of the business gods start grinding and Washington prepares for its biggest season of the year. Excursion trains run from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities. The hotels jam to the fire escapes.

From beaneries to department stores, the merchants hawk their wares in Cherry Blossom sales.

Traffic becomes a shambles. Cars by the tens of thousands pour across Flood Gate Bridge down into Cherry Blossom Lane. Pedestrians clog the pathways. Amateur photographers snap atrocities on miles of film. Old inhabitants swear oaths and take their annual vows never to mingle with this mob again.

A Queen, Too

Even as in the orange, cotton, tobacco, apple and other festivals of other cities, the Cherry Blossom festival has its queen. Just to show how widespread is becoming the affair here, this year's Queen Rose Colliflower lists among her princesses, Shirley Tholen, Leavenworth, Kas; Alice Betty Nicholas, Chicago; Grace Dexter, Dallas, Texas; Jane Winchester, Wilmington, Del.; and Rosemary Burns, Shreveport, La.

And all of this because, 28 years ago, the city fathers of Tokyo persisted (the first batch of trees they sent over were buggy and had to be burned—so they sent a second batch) in playing hands-across-the-sea.

But don't get me wrong. I love Washington, the cherry trees—and all the hocus-pocus that goes with both of them.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

The American Chemical society, holding a confab out in Cincinnati, hears a report from three Kansas City chemists that grass makes a pretty fine food for man. I hope it ain't just a sort of move in a preparedness campaign in case the next election don't turn out right.

Twelve pounds of grass contains more vitamins than you can get from all the fruit and vegetables you can eat in a whole year, the chemists say. You don't go out and mow yourself a lunch off the lawn, of course. It ain't as simple as that. It has to be especially dried and powdered. In other words the first step is to make you forget you are eating grass.

Grass has every vitamin except vitamin D, but some smart inventor will fix it to the lawn-mower can supply this.

The idea just now is to make the grass into a pancake flour or a breakfast food. I'll take a chance and go for some grasscakes provided I don't find somebody's found a way to make the maple syrup from spinach.

Mike Jacobs, Tex Rickard's successor, and a houseful of guests were held up and robbed at his country estate. The burglar men took $700, but ignored costly jewelry. Well, it's possible they may have been fight fans who saw some of those recent Joe Louis fights and were determined to get their money back.

IN THE SPRING A YOUNG MAN'S FANCY

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — Biggest topic of conversation in the inner circle of the Heil administration during the last few weeks has been the relations of August Frey, director of the research bureau who came to Madison as Gov. Heil's confidante and one of his best friends, with the chief executive.

Wyngaard

these facts can be set down:

1. Frey has lost prestige with the public and the Republican party during the last six months of his work as head of the bureau created to promote efficiency and economy in the state service.
2. He has made active enemies of some of the highest figures in the administration.
3. During the last week anyway, there has been a coolness between Heil and Frey which capital observers could not avoid noticing.

It is known definitely that Frey quarrelled bitterly with a high department official who enjoys the complete confidence and respect of the governor. The incident arose out of Frey's insistence on a "snooping" expedition into that man's department. Proud of his own accomplishments in reorganizing and economizing, the department head took Frey's demand as a personal affront, and refused flatly. It didn't take long for that report to reach the governor's ears.

Republican figures have been heard to comment that Frey's bureau, rather than doing good in furnishing campaign material, has become a liability. They point to the incongruity of Frey's constant boasts of reorganizing the highway department (boasts made while Governor Heil was out of town) and the final decision that the highway department will retain precisely the same kind of organization it had before Frey started his investigation there.

Frey, of course, appreciated fully the blow to his dignity and influence as an administration man which was represented in the governor's complete veto of his plans for the highway department. That veto, in turn, was made while Frey was out of the city, while he was vacationing in Florida.

And when he returned last week, reporters quickly noticed that the old intimacy between the research bureau director and the governor was no longer there. In fact, although he returned early in the week, Frey did not see the governor until Monday at least, if he has seen him at all.

TACTLESS

Mr. Frey's difficulties essentially arise out of his inexperience. Blunt and tactless, Frey has repeatedly offended legislators, Republican leaders, and prominent state government officials, not to mention the embarrassments he has caused the governor by his numerous public faux pas.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

REMONSTRANCE

Manufacturer of a fine wheat flour says my advice that everyone should eat four ounces of wheat germ daily wouldn't be so bad if any one could eat that much wheat germ. To get away with that much wheat germ in a day a person would need the stomach of a horse, the miller declares, and possibly the constitution of the Devil himself.

Come to think about it, I have never tried the suggestion on the dog, but have just assumed that because I like to chew a handful of plain wheat or eat a handful of wheat germ it should be pleasant enough for anybody to eat a fair amount of either every day.

But the miller insists that if one tries to eat four ounces of wheat germ without any of the remainder of the wheat, raw or cooked, the first ounce will convince him that he wasn't very hungry after all. Two ounces of sound, fully developed spring wheat, cracked and cooked in a double boiler after adding a dessertspoonful of pure wheat germ, and left in the cooker until morning, to be warmed up and served for breakfast, will give any one all the wheat germ he can take and like it, the miller assures me.

I am indebted to Adelle Davis, A. B., M. S., consulting nutritionist, for these practical suggestions as given in her books "Optimal Health" and "You Can Stay Well."

"Wheat germ may be cooked three to five minutes and served alone as a hot cereal, or can be added to any hot cereal. Wheat germ may be served raw with fruit, eaten as a cold cereal, added to meat loaf, or taken in orange juice or milk. By replacing one-half or more of the flour in any good recipe with wheat germ, you can make delicious cakes, waffles, nut bread, cookies, gingerbread, and spice cake."

"As soon as I told them that wheat germ was the cheapest source of the vitamin B complex and that it increased pep, produced healthy appetites, normal digestion and steady nerves, Mr. Taylor went directly to the flour mill and bought a 50-pound sack. I think it cost about four cents a pound. From that time on, Mrs. Taylor used wheat germ to replace one-third of the flour in making bread. It was delicious! I always tried to plan my visits when that hot bread was coming out of the oven."

Let me assure you, Nutritionist Davis knows what she is talking about. At the same time there may be something in the miller's observation that if one eats much wheat germ without the remainder of the wheat one's hunger or appetite is appeased or satisfied with less food. That is one effect of vitamin B complex which enters into the regimen of physiological reduction given in "Rules for Reducing" (for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope).

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Beware the Pirates

In the mail today comes a circular which lists an assortment of complaints for which "Dr. William Brady especially recommends wheat germ." This and all other statements, endorsements or suggestions using my name are unauthorized by me. Readers who have confidence in my teachings or advice should beware the pirates. No one has permission to use my name to help sell service, equipment or merchandise. If you want my opinion of any such things, ask me about it, enclosing a stamped envelope bearing your address, and I'll be glad to tell you what I think about it.

(Dr. Doc Brady)

The Anti-Gray Hair Factor

Have you any literature giving information on the so-called anti-gray factor? If so I'd be obliged if you will send me a copy. I'm anxious to do anything that may possibly retard the appearance of age—simply to hold my job.

Ans.—No. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on "Care of the Hair." It includes instructions for taking the Iodin Ration, which numerous readers declare has prevented graying of the hair prematurely. The "anti-gray hair factor" is one of the entities in the vitamin B complex. Eat some vitamin complex daily as a supplement to your diet, in the form of tablets (four to six contain 60 to 900 units of B) or in the form of wheat germ (an ounce contains about 120 units of B).

Baby Book

I am 22 years old, and am expecting my baby in the end of August. This may not interest you, but perhaps it will interest you to know that I was raised on your Baby Book—my mother sent it to me the other day. Is it still a good guide for me to follow?

Ans.—Yes, so far as it goes. That must have been the first edition. The present Baby Better Bigger Baby Book is the sixth edition and contains several new tricks. For copy send ten cent coin and stamped envelope bearing your address. Then you should have "Preparing for Maternity"—another ten-cent booklet which includes sound suggestions regarding the expectant father's diet, etc.

Silicosis and Tuberculosis
What if anything is the similarity between silicosis and tuberculosis? Do both of these diseases come under occupational disease laws? (A. D.)

Answer—Silicosis produces symptoms much like chronic tuberculosis of lungs, is more often the forerunner of tuberculosis. Silicosis is an occupational disease. Tuberculosis is not. Silicosis unquestionably renders the individual liable to contract tuberculosis if exposed to it.

Too Much Lime

Can one get too much lime in his system, from food or medicine? If so, does it cause hardening of the arteries? (Mrs. W. J. W.)

Answer—No. One reason why many fail to hang on to their youth or become prematurely aged is that they get insufficient lime (calcium).

Lanolin And No Soap

I am much indebted for your suggestion to use lanolin and no soap for annoying and painful cracks in the skin of the fingers. Since I adopted this I have no more trouble. (Mrs. I. C. T.)

Answer—Many persons with chapped and cracked hands would do well to depend on lanolin or equal parts of lanolin and fresh castor oil for cleansing the hands, using no soap or other cleaner to remove the oil the skin needs.

Pegler Doesn't Like the Way Hoover Handles F.B.I. News

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—The recent flurry of publicity regarding J. Edgar Hoover's sojourn in the Miami was due in part to his participation in the game of log-rolling, also known as back-scratching, which is one of the favorite sports of members of the New Deal administration. In this game, a department or bureau head, enters an understanding with one or more journalists whereby he receives favorable publicity in return for petty news breaks and gossip or back-ground on official matters. The ethical impropriety of such dealing is obvious to real newspaper reporters, but nowadays we have a hybrid type performing on the air as well as in print whose studio rating and pay are measured by their ability to deliver little bluffs of exclusive news or prediction, not necessarily accurate or even true, and not necessarily important. Many items which are sent over the air in a shriek as flash matter are so trivial that in the newspapers, they would not make print at all. The air is scandalously indifferent to the fundamental rules of reporting, which call for verification or, at least, a conscientious effort to verify. But I am sorry I brought up that thought, because the truth is that such hybrids use the same methods in print that they use on the radio, and the press is to that extent no better than the broadcasting companies.

Pegler

A long time ago, when the public almost unanimously hated prohibition and inferentially, at least, admired bootleggers and racketeers, the hoodlum received a fine press and the gangster fiction and movies and even gangsters news glamorized the criminal and low-rated the police and federal agents. But when the kidnappings began, after repeal, there was an abrupt, deliberate change, and J. Edgar Hoover and his department, up to that time almost unknown to the public, were heroized and the criminals correctly were depicted as vermin.

Hoover's press apparently went to his head, and a quiet, efficient boss became a celebrity and fight-night type. Cheap publicity began to appear about him. Publicity of a romantic kind which any man can put a stop to if he is determined to do so.

About the same time that Mr. Hoover began to be identified with a type of off journalism, which is the foulest development in the trade since the dirtiest days of James Gordon Bennett, he also began to reproach the bulk of the American press for meddling in the investigations of important crimes. There were regrettable offenses in which reporters using old-fashioned methods accidentally tipped off criminals, but in no case, was there any suggestion that any reporter, however uncouth his methods, was in league with the crooks. And it may be remembered that according to Mr. Hoover himself, and Homer T. Cummings, when he was attorney general, the local cops are not always trustworthy. In St. Paul and Kansas City, for example, and in Chicago, too, a good reporter, working on his own, might turn up evidence which the police were trying to conceal. And remembering that Harry Daugherty once was attorney general and William J. Burns chief of the F.B.I., it is not unthinkable that the department of justice itself might at times be not entirely reliable.

It seems odd that Mr. Hoover, who was criticizing the press generally for bad ethics should nevertheless associate his prestige and reputation of his bureau with a source of shame and embarrassment to all legitimate members of the craft. Legitimate newspapermen learn early in the game certain imperative rules, and it was impossible to maintain the highest respect for the head of a federal bureau who plainly had a preference for the scandal and rumor school of journalism.

Many men choose his friends, and that privilege goes for J. Edgar Hoover, but the reason now given on positive authority why Mr. Hoover permitted his own official prestige and that of his bureau to be so exploited will not endear him to congress or allay the curiosity of congress regarding his operations. It is explained that Mr. Hoover permitted this exploitation and touting as an act of gratitude for services rendered. What were those services? Mr. Hoover is naive enough to believe that a log-rolling or propaganda campaign waged on his behalf by a gent's room journalist compelled congress to raise the appropriation for his bureau some years ago.

Congress will not like to be told that a bureau chief resorted to such means to influence legislation and that, in payment for this coercion he had permitted the commercial exploitation of the F.B.I.

Austro-Russian Bayonet Fight In Carpathian Mountain Pass Took Headlines 25 Years Ago

BY VIOLA HELLERMANN

Although rumors, persisted 25 years ago this month that Austrian diplomats were negotiating for peace with Russia, the two countries were engaging in what some correspondents called "the most furious bayonet battle in the history of the world" in the Carpathian mountains at the Lupkow pass. Bayonets were used because neither side was able to put its artillery to effective use in the snow filled gulleys and on the slippery mountain sides.

The two armies fought along a 20-mile front, and the world watched with interest. Many thought the end of the war might hinge on the result. Nearly half a million Austro-Germans were encamped along the Carpathian battlefield. Both sides reported gains, but apparently without important results thus far.

The internal situation in Austria-Hungary was said to be increasingly grave, and violent anti-war riots occurred in Vienna and several other cities.

Stories of the Russian-Austrian struggle brought to Appleton's newspaper readers only one phase of the World war. In their two daily newspapers they read also of the sinking of a third British battleship, the Lord Nelson, at the Dardanelles, and of continued fighting on the western front, both the French and the Germans claiming gains in the woods between the Meuse and the Moselle rivers, east and southeast of Verdun, where a series of engagements were being fought.

Probably because the reports were so conflicting, the newspapers carried only brief items about the western front fighting.

For instance, on April 2, 1915, the Berlin dispatch stated, "German successes in Le Pertre woods north-east of St. Mihiel have forced the French to evacuate nearly the entire forest," while the Paris report said, "French attempts either to cut off or force a retirement of the Germans occupying St. Mihiel apparently are meeting with success."

Several days later Berlin announced that two French battalions had been annihilated in the fierce battle then in progress east and southeast of Verdun, but Paris made no mention of the tragedy, if it was true, and confined its war office statement that day to the report that "the French army moving between the Meuse and Moselle is smashing in the sides of the great German wedge."

The opening of the Dardanelles was not as easy an undertaking as the allies had first supposed. Confirmation of the report that the Russian Black Sea fleet had abandoned the bombardment of the Bosporus forts came to London April 1 from Petrograd and Constantinople. The Russians wasted ammunition, hurling 2,000 shells without doing any important damage, Constantinople announced.

Battle At Dardanelles
Both good and bad news for the allies came from Turkey April 5.

The good news was that the Turkish armored cruiser Medjidieh was lost in an engagement off Odessa and that more than 30,000 Anglo-French troops had been landed at Lemnos island to join the allied forces. This was offset by the sinking of the British battleship Lord Nelson, which had been stranded inside the Dardanelles.

The possibility of America's eventual participation in the war still seemed unlikely. The United States had demanded payment of the American vessel William P. Frye, sunk by the German Prince Eitel Frederick, but it was known that Germany was willing to pay for the ship and would not defend the Eitel's action.

Certain American industries were suffering, however, because of the war. More than 400,000 men in 28 states would be thrown out of work in from 30 to 60 days unless England was persuaded to permit America to import German dye stuffs, according to a delegation which appeared to President Wilson for relief on April 6.

Three Appleton Germans who were made prisoners shortly after they left to fight for their fatherland in August, 1914, wrote letters to their Appleton relatives and friends asking for letters, cigars and money with which to buy food. They were Max Zaglauer, Peter Hauscher and Michael Voll, and their letters came from the Isle of Man, England, where they were being held prisoners. Some of the letters were printed in the Appleton Evening Crescent on April 3, 1915.

Neutral Rights Near Vanishing Point—Lawrence

Concession of U. S. Has Weakened Position of Smaller Nations

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—The rights of neutrals—the issue over which the United States fought a war in 1917—have now been reduced almost to the vanishing point.

Lawrence

The British action in carrying their sea warfare into Norwegian territorial waters represents about the last step toward sanctioning by custom and practice the invasion of the neutral rights at the very doorstep of smaller nations.

What the allies are doing, of course, is the result of provocation by the Nazi government which, from the beginning of the war, has waged ruthless submarine warfare against neutral shipping. When submarine operations in the last war shocked the opinion of the civilized world and ultimately aroused the American people to enter into a war far distant from their own shores, it was believed that progress had been made toward the delimitation of the rights of belligerents.

Today, however, due possibly to the willingness of the United States to abandon neutral rights or rather to refrain from asserting such neutral rights, the belligerents are moving in to conduct their war irrespective of boundaries or territorial waters.

The fact that the British, who for generations of past history have been the outstanding champions of the rights of neutrals, should decide deliberately to mine the territorial waters of a neutral country is a step so sensational that its implications may not be realized for many years to come.

Sink Neutral Tonnage

It means, of course, that war has reached such a stage that neither side is willing to respect so-called neutral rights any longer. Since the Nazis have sunk such a vast amount of neutral tonnage without endeavoring to separate contraband from noncontraband, the British have felt justified in trying to stop all German exports as well as imports.

This, however, cannot be done when countries contiguous to Germany maintain trade operations with America and other neutrals.

The allies now have determined to let nothing get into Germany directly or indirectly, and the intensification of the war will reveal a far more aggressive position in this respect by the British than ever before. The theory that what one enemy does permits the other belligerent to do likewise has now been adopted as a sort of legitimate rule of thumb. It may extend before long to aerial bombardments of cities or possibly to the movement of planes directly across neutral territories.

So far as the United States government is concerned, it may watch with academic interest the strangulation of neutral rights. Certainly no voice has been lifted here in Washington against the indiscriminate way by which the Nazis have arrogated to themselves the right to sink any or all neutral ships on sight with the possible exception of those of the United States and Italy, which for special reasons are allowed to pass.

No protest, therefore, can logically be made now against what the British are doing in sowing mines in neutral waters on the Norwegian coast. So long as neither Germany nor Britain operates in American territorial waters presumably no expression of opinion will be forthcoming from the United States though it is a matter of regret that America has not even chosen to argue for the theory of neutral rights since the war began.

Unquestionably American public opinion has had much to do with the timidity of the department of state in expressing itself about neutral rights. Nobody in government here new would dare to say what President Wilson said in 1915 and 1916 about the rights of neutrals. The cry that would arise especially in a year of presidential and congressional elections would stifle any such outburst on the ground that America was being "dragged" into the war.

For the sake of the record at least and for the projection of the rights of neutrals in the future, the United States government would be justified in calling to the attention of both the Nazi government and the allied governments the serious transgressions of neutral rights of which their respective navies are guilty. If the principle be conceded that belligerents have unlimited rights, then the opportunities for small nations to keep themselves free from war will disappear and the large nations will find that the area of operations in every war is more and more extensive with the consequence that America will have a much more difficult time preserving her neutrality hereafter by a passive attitude.

To acquiesce in the attacks on neutral shipping and to withdraw American vessels from the high seas in their trading with the neutral countries of Europe is to concede that the high seas belong to the belligerents. This concession on the part of the United States has weakened the position of the smaller neutrals of the world. They have no champion any longer and it remains to be seen whether further violations of neutral rights even in Latin American waters will cause the United States to change her attitude to one of active protest.

Rostock, Germany—(AP)—A 22-year-old German youth was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment because he loaned a Polish war prisoner working on a farm here a suit of clothes and then took him to the movie and dance hall in town. He was accused of having disregarded the danger of espionage and sabotage through his contact with a war prisoner.

Seek Decision In Dispute Over Stelle's Action

Courts or Legislature May Settle Illinois Controversy

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Either the courts or the legislature may be asked to settle the stormy dispute between Governor Horner and Lieutenant Governor John Stelle over who shall exercise the powers of governor of Illinois.

This view was expressed widely today among state officials speculating privately on the outcome of Stelle's action in proclaiming him advance DNS said, was to give Governor Horner a move which brought from Denmark and blockaded the North Sea approach to south Danish ports.

While Horner thus vowed intention to stay in office and Stelle contended the chief executive was "disabled" by illness, authorities agreed that the state's 1870 constitution provides no clearcut procedure for deciding the controversy. Veteran statehouse employees said the dispute is the first of its nature in state history.

Governor Horner declared in the statement issued from the executive mansion that he had been elected by the people and would "continue to perform my constitutional duty as governor until the expiration of my term."

The Horner statement referred to Stelle's move yesterday in signing a special legislation session call and "fring" finance Director S. L. Nudelman as "pathetic antics" intended to "intimidate" state employees. Nudelman and other administration officials said they would ignore Stelle's acts.

Defense Plan Subject to Many Changes

BY ELY CULBERTSON

In the majority of hands the defenders can form only a tentative plan of defense which is subject to repeated change as the play gradually develops. In other hands, however, it is not difficult to foresee at the very outset what is certain to transpire toward the end of the hand, and in those cases the full campaign must be mapped out at the start.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 spade 2 diamonds Double 2 hearts
3 spades Double Pass Pass

West was by no means satisfied with his own choice of a two diamond bid over the opening spade, but he was afraid of a take-out double because of his shortage in the other major suit, hearts, and could not see how a three diamond bid could improve the situation, since again it was an odds-on chance that his partner would respond with hearts. East's rescue, despite his trickless hand, was not bad. He could clearly see that in diamonds his hand could not produce a single trick, whereas if he found a partner with even two hearts, his six card suit might produce as many as four tricks. South had a close question to decide: whether to double two hearts or to bid for game in spades, taking advantage of his own 30 part-score. His choice could not be censured, but he should have given more thought to the subsequent play.

West opened the diamond king, dummy won, and declarer promptly proceeded to lay himself wide open by taking a trump finesse to the jack. It is true that very few players in the West position would have had the skill to take advantage of this slip, but this particular West was a master of defense. Upon winning the spade queen, he led, not a diamond honor, but the six of diamonds. (The beauty of this play will become apparent as the analysis proceeds.) Declarer overruled East's ruff, led the ace of spades, and then knocked out the ace of hearts. This time West continued with the diamond queen. Again declarer ruffed, and now he cleared away the club ace. The jack of diamonds came back and declarer had to use his next to last trump, which left him with the blank king. He cashed one club trick, but West ruffed in on the next lead, and the ruff of the ten of diamonds now took declarer's last trump. West ruffed declarer's next lead and cashed his good diamond for the second setting trick.

The hand was extremely interesting from two different angles. First, had declarer properly disdained the trump finesse, laying down the ace and king, thereby leaving West with two trump tricks, then had gone about his business of clearing away the ace of hearts and clubs, no defense whatever could have taken more than four tricks. After the spade finesse, however, it still required West's brilliant underlead of his remaining three diamond honors to defeat the contract at all.

grade. Although Jim is 17, he cannot read as well as a normal 4th grader.

How To Be A Good Reader
A common mistake of children is their attempt to get the answer to a problem without going through the simple steps. Arithmetic and reading skill might well be compared to climbing a stairway. If you methodically take each step in order, you'll soon arrive at the successful conclusion.

Too many children try to jump to the head of the stairs without this simple scientific precision. Instead of getting panicky when trying to utter a four syllable word, such as "emotional," Jim should have taken it one step at a time, as e-mo-tion-al. Then he never would have called it "emotional."

The unit of speech is a vowel, either alone or flanked by one or more consonants. We call this unit a syllable. Many average citizens seem unfamiliar with the vowels, which are the voiced letters such as a, e, i, o and u. A few consonants also involve the vocal cords, such as l, m and n.

The word "apple" has two syllables, for we count the vocalized "i." As a rule, however, consonants alone do not constitute a syllable. They must be attached to a vowel in order to get vocal action.

Give Pay for Extra Chores In Addition to Allowance

BY ANGELO PATRI

Often the question arises about paying children for home chores or giving them a fixed allowance regardless of their contribution to the household. I think the answer is both the allowance and the pay for the chores.

When children ask for pennies to buy candies the allowance begins. They are too young to understand much of the matter but they must learn and the earlier the better, that spending money for pleasure is limited. They should get their pennies about twice a week, and the pay-day should be observed strictly, no delays and no extras in between. We do this to teach that money once spent is spent for good and all, and that there is a set limit to that spending.

As the child grows his allowance increases. We want to teach him that there are necessities which must be paid for so we give him this weekly amount to buy the cheapest and simplest of them. First, perhaps, pencils and crayons, then notebooks are added, then, as he becomes more and more acquainted with the values involved, some articles of clothing, starting with stockings, gloves and handkerchiefs, are added to his list. We teach the child to buy and to get the most for his money so when he is ready for college he has a working knowledge of the use of money in this field.

While he was learning to use an allowance for his needs we began letting him earn a little by doing extra chores about the house. These are chores that would have been given out, or done by some older member of the family who might better be relieved of them. They are not the ordinary chores like making one's bed, washing the dishes, unless a maid would have been brought in for the purpose. Those are duties that children should take on as a matter of course. Extra chores should be paid for and an account kept. This money is added to the allowance and used as wisely as his experience permits.

All the while the child has been gathering these experiences we have been initiating him into the family partnership. He, in time, is to know how much money comes into the household fund and what is done with it, and what is his relation to the matter. He is taught by slow degrees that he shares in all that goes on within the family and it is his duty to save and help as well as to enjoy. If he is well taught, he soon learns that he should do his share of the earning and take himself and his concerns off the backs of his elders. Then he begins to earn and save in earnest, a long forward step in his growth.

Father or mother should supervise the child's accounts. It is unwise to allow children to handle money without a strict and businesslike accounting for it. This training begins with the first allowance and mother helps the child set down his record—three cents received, three cents spent for candy. This keeping of accounts teaches both sides of the matter so much that it is worth all the trouble it takes.

The adolescent child who lives at home, earns money, spends it without reference to the family and demands an allowance, has not been educated in the use of money and there is little one can do about it. Begin with the younger ones and teach them until there is no longer any need.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Marriage Should Not Curb Sentimentality, Romance

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Does marriage kill love? Can a man and woman stay in love with each other after they are husband and wife? Do men consent that they are through their courting when they marry? G.H.B.

Dorothy Dix

Answer:
If love could not stand the strain of marriage, instead of there being one crack-up in every six marriages, divorce would be universal. This is proof positive of the fact that the great majority of the people stay married because they want to, not because they have to. No idea is more erroneous than that marriage kills love. Perhaps romance seldom survives the wear and tear of everyday life and of a man and woman finding out that their mates are just ordinary human beings with human faults and weaknesses. In place of his flubdub sentimentality there grows up between most husbands and wives a deep affection that makes them love each other a thousand times more on their silver wedding day than they did on their first.

It is inevitable that husbands and wives, if they are decent people, who try to do their duty by each other, should be drawn together rather than separated by marriage. For one thing, they are dependent on each other for their happiness. For another thing, they have all interests in common.

"I thank Thee for the joyous cry of Daddy! Daddy! Daddy! which rings through the house whenever Father comes, and which expresses the love and happiness of our little ones."

"I thank Thee for small arms about my neck at bedtime. I thank Thee for little fumbling hands that they have suggested I come to visit them at the same time. Mother thinks some one in his family ought to at least second his invitation, and she refuses to think it would be right for me to go otherwise, since they have made no advances of any kind to me, nor beyond this suggestion to him that I pay them a visit have they shown that they even know of my engagement to their son."

"Oh God, make me big enough always to love my job. Give me the patience to bear with childish ways, and may I have wisdom that I may gently lead my children to grow into fine adults, happy because they have found the joy in work and service and beauty in little things about them every day."

"Oh God, may I, a humble housewife, never miss a sunset or a rainbow because I am looking down, instead of up."

JUST A HOMEMAKER.

And to that we all say: Amen.

Question of Onions
Or a Man's Love

Dear Miss Dix—I am keeping company with a young man who is very fond of onions and insists on eating them on the nights when we have dates. Now I love this young man very much, but I do not like onion on his breath. Would it be asking too much to ask him to refrain from eating onions? Or shall I keep on loving him and permit him to gorge himself on them as much as he wishes. JANE.

Answer:
Well, Jane, I agree with you that onions are not the perfume with which a poet would flavor love's young dream, and that a girl could hardly grow enthusiastic over an onion-scented kiss, but still and all, I am taking a big risk when you make giving up that succulent and odoriferous vegetable the proof of your sweetheart's love for you.

For, you see, the onion-eater is joined to his idols and when you ask him to give them up, you are striking not only at his heart but his stomach. You are taking the joy out of eating the flavor out of food, and there is little affection in this unromantic age that will stand that test.

My earnest advice to you is to learn to be an onion-eater yourself, for onion-eaters, I understand, are immunized to each other's breath and hence are not offended by the odor which calls for cloths pins on the noses of the nononionists.

But, at any rate, settle the onion problem before you get married. It is playing it pretty low down to marry a man knowing that he has a habit that is objectionable to you and then spend the balance of your life nagging him about it.

CRISP DRESS

BY ANNE ADAMS

The nicest thing about this dress is that it makes you feel "at home" anywhere—marketing, visiting, or when you really are "at home" to your friends. It's an Anne Adams design, which accounts for its easy-to-wear smartness and easy-to-make simplicity. The open diagram view shows how quickly Pattern 4386 may be cut and stitched. Darts keep the waistline neat; gathers below the pointed yoke hold in bodice softness. Have loose, comfortably flared sleeves or puffed sleeves with decorative tabs. Wouldn't rick-rack or ruffling add a cheery note? Another gay idea would be to use contrast for yoke, sleeve-tabs and smart optional pockets.

Pattern 4386 is available in Women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 takes 3½ yards 35 inch fabric and 2½ yards rick-rack.

Good Taste Today by Emily Post

GOOD TASTE

Rules of etiquette are like traffic lights in that they enable us to understand the intentions of strangers when their intentions really matter; the latter add security to life, the former are often essential to happiness. The present unhappiness of a newly engaged girl would have been averted had a certain rule of etiquette been followed. The letter describing this situation says:

"My fiancée's family live too far away to pay the conventional visit on our family. But neither have they written me notes of welcome, which my mother is taking to heart. My fiancée works in a distant city and I see him very little. He has just written telling me that he is going home to visit his family and that they have suggested I come to visit them at the same time. Mother thinks some one in his family ought to at least second his invitation, and she refuses to think it would be right for me to go otherwise, since they have made no advances of any kind to me, nor beyond this suggestion to him that I pay them a visit have they shown that they even know of my engagement to their son."

I agree with Mother that his mother is being very lax, but since I am going to be her daughter-in-law I think it would make much worse situation if I refused to go to meet them. I can't see how taking offense at what merely seems impolite—and may not be intended—is going to add to my husband's or my own future happiness."

In answer to this, I would suggest that you write to your fiancée and tell him that your mother is perhaps old-fashioned but that she thinks his mother should write to expect you. And therefore, won't he ask her to write you a note. It is really not being stiff or unreasonable, and the only possible impression your wanting a personal message could make is that you have a proper mother who has properly brought you up.

Giving a Party in Another's House
Dear Mrs. Post: My sister wants to give an afternoon tea in my house. She is not married and lives at a club and has no place to give parties other than here. I am perfectly willing to let her give the party, but I'm wondering if it will be correct for the invitations to go out in her name alone, inviting people to my house who are strangers to me.

Answer: Yes it will be quite correct. Invitations sent in your sister's name alone mean that she is giving the party by herself and that you are merely lending her your house. It is not even necessary that your name be mentioned, but if you are to be present, she may, if she chooses—and if you want her to do so—write "At the house of Mrs. John Brown." If she wants to explain further she would have to write second person notes and say "at the house of Mrs. John Brown (my sister)."

Write the kind of charming gracious letters that you love to get!

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK By Peggy O'More

Chapter One 'Leap Before You Leap'

Tom! Tom! Tom! would always remember that afternoon as a period of calm before the storm.

True, there was a storm outside, but that was a mere gale which howled in from Lake Michigan to dash sleet against the windows and pile snow on the ledges.

Within the offices of Mid-Western Fruits, Incorporated, there hovered a portentous calm. Radiators sizzled contentedly; from the outer office came the lethargic rhythm of a dozen typewriters, and even Johnny coming in from the street with the Market Edition, failed to slam the door.

Tom! glanced at the clock. The hands hovered encouragingly near the hour of five. She looked over her shoulder. Her employer, A. J. Morris, was comfortably slumped behind his newspaper.

"Now, if he'll just stay that way," thought Tom!, "I'll reach home on time for a change."

Stealthily she brought from her desk a mirror to be braced in the typewriter carriage; a powder-puff to be rubbed over the smooth planes of her cheeks, and a lipstick. The lipstick was poised, ready to add further definition to a minuscule mouth, when A. J. barked: "Tom! missed its mark."

"Yes, A. J.," she answered, resignedly, reaching for a paper handkerchief and wondering why he always waited until five minutes of five to hold a conference with her.

"Tom! ever hear of a fellow named Timothy Toland?"

Tom!'s mirror revealed startled black eyes and a distinctly crimson nose. "Yes," she admitted. "I had a great uncle by that name. He died a month ago."

"Worth anything?" pursued A. J.

Tom! smiled. "According to the family, he wasn't worth powder to blow him up. He was the black ram of the Tolands. Aside from your private secretary, Mr. Morris, he was the only member of an old and honorable clan to grow gray hairs on the pates of his elders."

"Chuckled Morris. 'Did you ever meet him?'

Tom!, her nose again becoming sheathed in powder instead of lipstick, turned around. "Rather," she confessed. "He spent a few weeks with us about a year ago. We both ran true to form. We fought from the moment we were brought into the world. It was lots of fun. But why this catechism?"

Morris rustled the newspaper. "Little piece in here about to be offered for probate. A fellow by the name of Bartell, an attorney, is here from California to settle the estate. He's the administrator."

Tom! read the article Morris passed to her. It carried an Alameda, California, dateline and stated that Bartell was flying to Chicago to confer with the heirs.

"That can't be my Uncle Timothy," she disparaged. "The poor old money didn't have anything to will anyone. Why, I—" she stopped short.

"Not a cent," replied Tom! firmly. She hurried to her locker, a slim figure in parrot-green wool, black hair severely cut, straight.

THE HOME GARDENER by EDWIN H. PERKINS

While it is freely admitted that the gardening ambitions of the person renting a home on short-term lease may need curtailment in comparison with those allowed the one permanently located, the gardener of the temporary plot need not confine his efforts to the annuals.

Annuals are indispensable in all gardens. They serve a useful function yet they do not, nor can they ever, replace the beauty of perennials. Fortunately some perennials are easily and quickly grown and suited to the temporary garden. If a limited budget can be allowed for the purchase of perennial plants instead of seeds, instantaneous effects can be created at a surprisingly low cost.

Plants which grow easily are Shasta daisies, perennial phloxes, gaillardias, perennial flaxes, peach bells, geums, sweet williams, pinks and the ever popular yellow coreopsis. Three clumps, one each of your choice, will make a complete small garden this year, provided the clump is two years old and the purchase made early. The clump should be divided into smaller sections. Each small division with roots will become a flowering size plant by the end of this season.

The list can be extended by primroses, columbines, delphiniums, asters and chrysanthemums, all of which do well in temporary gardens. None of the plants mentioned resents moving at almost any season, if their owner decides on a change of residence.

My Neighbor Says—

When planting rose bushes see that the trench in which they are planted is well fertilized before putting in bushes and loam.

Often, after serving a platter of assorted cheeses, you have a few unappetizing-looking odds and ends left over. Wrap each kind separately in waxed paper, cover them and store them in the refrigerator. They will come in handy for salad, sandwich or canape mixtures or for dressing toast or crackers served with soups. Milder cheeses add a pleasing flavor to vegetable, meat or fish sauces.

One-fourth cup cooked crisp bacon added to bread batter when baked gives a delicious flavor which goes well with a breakfast or lunch-box main dish.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Case Records of a Psychologist. A man can educate himself if he is a good reader. But reading skill is based largely on pronunciation. If, like Jim, you try to make wild guesses when you meet strange words, you have not been properly trained in reading. You may be excused for errors in accenting a word, or even for uttering a long vowel as a short vowel, but you should always be able to break words down into syllables.

Both of these boys have attended the same school, though they didn't have the same teacher when they learned to read.

Learn To Read Fluently
Reading is the most essential attribute for gaining an education.

Readers are usually poor in nearly every school subject, even including mathematics.

It isn't necessary for a person to know every word he meets, or even to pronounce it correctly, but he should know how to break a word down into syllables.

In the first grades of grammar school we don't emphasize the a-b-c's as old, nor do we stress syllables, but a child ought to get the latter training before he reaches the 5th grade.

So I called my two elder sons, George and Philip, aged 10 and 9. I handed them the same Case Record. Philip read it fluently, but George was not as good, though he far excelled Jim.

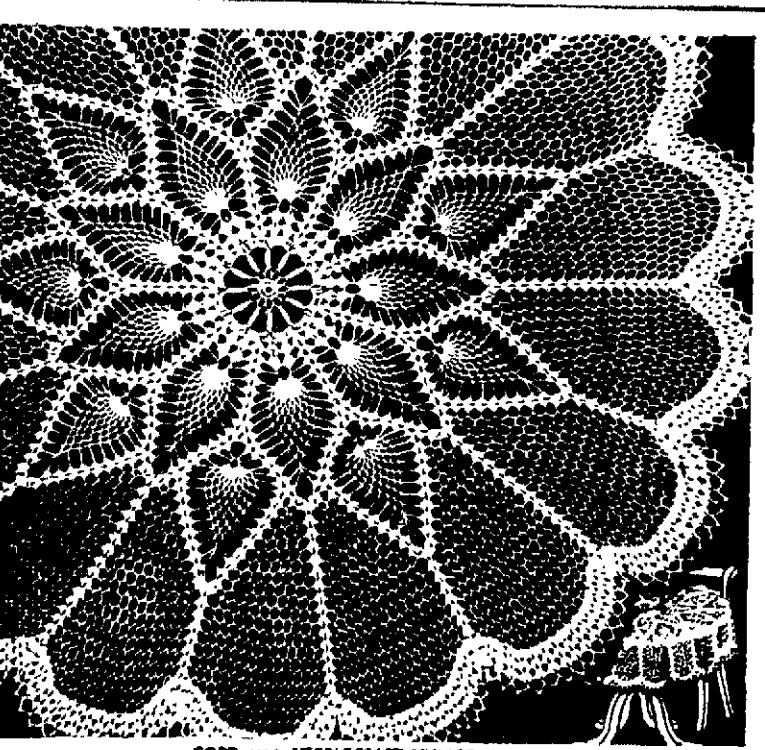

It was normal, so I asked him to pronounce several test words, and found that he had little or no idea of syllables. If he encountered a strange word, he simply made a wild guess.

Winnebago County One of 26 Cut Off From Road Funds

Outagamie County on List For Help Because of Bond Issue

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Madison—That many Wisconsin counties were not informed at the time Governor Heil's highway diversion policy was announced several months ago of the effect of that action on their construction allotments from the state highway department was revealed here today. Apparently not until recently did county highway authorities generally realize that the administration's decision to use about $5,000,000 of highway funds to balance the state budget would mean the elimination of construction funds in 26 of the state's 71 counties.

26 Cut Off
First inkling in Winnebago county, for example, was given last week in a letter by D. F. Culbertson, Green Bay division engineer, to the county board. County board officials there protested, according to reports, but unless the executive decides to alter the plans announced early this year, Winnebago and 25 others will not participate in the construction funds available during the present season.

The Heil highway diversion decision was publicly announced some months ago. Besides curtailing free fund construction and maintenance budgets, the regular allotments to counties for work on state trunk highways was reduced $1,373,693 for the year. In addition, a reserve fund owed to counties from the previous year, totaling $685,950, was also withheld.

Pay Off Bonds
The explanation for the apparent arbitrary effect in the highway program curtailment which eliminates 26 counties from any participation in this year's program is that in many other counties the funds are used to retire bonds issued for projects already completed. Since the state cannot default on the bonding agreements, those counties which anticipated future state allotments by borrowing through bond issues are favored under the present circumstances. They include both Outagamie and Brown counties in the Fox river valley.

Address on Cancer Is Given at Chilton

Chilton—Dr. D. Twohig of Fond du Lac, state office of the committee on cancer, gave a public address in the Chilton high school auditorium Monday afternoon. The talk was illustrated by films. Dr. Twohig substituted for Dr. Ferdinand Nuxer, state chairman of the Wisconsin Medical Society committee on cancer, who was ill. Mrs. G. E. Stadaoui of Wisconsin, state commander for Wisconsin, also addressed the meeting. These talks, which were sponsored by the Chilton Woman's club, are the first in a campaign in Chilton to educate the people in the community to the dangers of cancer and to the fact, attested by the leading cancer specialists, that it can be cured if detected in its early stages.

Mr. William F. Stauss, Chilton president of the Chilton Woman's club, has been appointed lieutenant in charge of the campaign for the city.

She hadn't loaned Uncle Timothy anything she defended. But he had looked so seedy and pale that last evening, she'd decided she didn't need a spring coat and had slipped fifty dollars into his hand and made him promise he would take a berth instead of a chair car and eat nourishing meals.

Morris was watching for her when she reappeared, a small green hat riding triumphantly on the glossy black hair, a fur coat pulled high about a determined chin and galoshes buttoned snugly about trim ankles.

Living In Yesterday
"In a hurry?" he teased.

Tom looked at him and shook her head in exasperation. "A J. J. you know Great-aunt Hannah makes the family wait for their dinner until every member is there and seated. This is mutton night and I can't eat cold mutton."

"Ugh," shuddered Morris. "Why do you put up with it, Tom?"

"All right for the full-blooded Tolands to bow to the matriarch, but you're only half Toland. You had ten years—"

"Ten years as a gutter-snipe," inquired Tom peevishly. "Only in France, we called them gamins. It was fun," she murmured dreamily. "I was too young to know about my father's death. He was just another Yankee captain who went down under a Boche bullet. I was four when Mimi died. After that life was one long stretch of freedom and trying to find bread."

sharp peak, then, contrarily, swept back on either side. It was light brown with a hint of gold in it.

And his eyes? They were clear gray-blue with golden tints of laughter in them.

Laughter? Tom's motto had been, "Be nonchalant; laugh first." She hadn't had time. She decided she hated this man.

"Tom!" came the outraged voice of Great-aunt Hannah.

Tom regained her balance with a sharp click of her heels and flipped her hat to a less ribald angle. "Yes, Aunt Hannah?" she questioned, dutifully.

"Will you never learn to look before you leap?"

Tom looked at the voluminous skirts which swept the floor around Hannah Toland's chair, and answered sweetly, "If Ming Toy ever learns that you don't go around on wheels, you'll leap too."

There was one sharp, quickly controlled laugh, then deep silence, broken by Major John Toland's gruff voice. "Apologize to your aunt and go to your room, Tom. Dress in something appropriate to this occasion and return immediately. Mr. Bartell has come from California to read us the will of our dear departed brother, Timothy."

Tom couldn't think of an apology, because she was recalling the newspaper item. So Timothy had had something to bequeath? Insurance probably. She smiled at her great-aunt and made a graceful exit.

The exit was a signal for the conversation to continue. One remark reached Tom's ears.

"Not that poor dear Uncle Timothy would remember Tom in his will," purred May Toland-Carrington, evidently to Bartell. "He didn't approve of her. He said he took his girls old-fashioned."

"And piped Harold, Mimi's seraphic son, 'Tom said she took her old-fashionedness with lemon peel.'"

Tom's slim ankles went up the stairs in full flight. Darn such a family, she thought. Why did they always manage to make her look the fool before strangers?

"Something appropriate to the occasion," she murmured and her eyes began to twinkle.

Uncle Timothy once remarked that her mind was as streamlined as her figure. Well, she had a flame-colored frock which would establish the accuracy of Timothy's observation.

Tom squeezed herself into it, powdered her face to a white mask, painted her lips a defiant carlet, then tripped downstairs to sit like a flamingo at a black-bird party.

Seek Decision In Dispute Over Stelle's Action

Courts or Legislature May Settle Illinois Controversy

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Either the courts or the legislature may be asked to settle the stormy dispute between Governor Horner and Lieutenant Governor John Stelle over who shall exercise the powers of governor of Illinois.

This view was expressed widely today among state officials speculating privately on the outcome of Stelle's action in proclaiming himself acting chief executive of the state, a move which brought from Governor Horner the defiant declaration: "I will continue to serve as governor."

While Horner thus vowed intention to stay in office and Stelle contended the chief executive was "disabled" by illness, authorities agreed that the state's 1870 constitution provides no clearcut procedure for deciding the controversy. Veteran statehouse employees said the dispute is the first of its nature in state history.

Governor Horner declared in the statement issued from the executive mansion that he had been elected by the people and would "continue to perform my constitutional duty as governor until the expiration of my term."

The Horner statement referred to Stelle's move yesterday in signing a special legislation session call and "firing" finance Director S. L. Nudelman as "pathetic antics" intended to "intimidate" state employees. Nudelman and other administrative officials said they would ignore Stelle's acts.

Student Workers Must Have Security Numbers

Apple Milk Can be Used to Make Medicine and Candy

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Editor Cincinnati, Ohio—Apple milk is going to make both medicine and candy, grape fruit will appear in women's clothes as part of beautiful dye and a bucket of engine oil will be made to smell like fresh fruits and old-fashioned flowers.

These are discoveries of new chemical processes reported to the American Chemical Society today.

The apple milk was reported by F. C. Vubrandt and R. D. Sieg, of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va. Whole apples are ground to pulp. The pulp is mixed with skim milk, and a new food is the result.

Flavored, the apple milk makes good candy. For medicine it contains the ingredients of apple already widely-used for infant diarrhea.

The grapefruit contribution to colors comes from a new Florida industry to make oil out of grapefruit seeds. This was reported by A. J. Nolte and H. W. von Loesecke of the United States citrus fruit station, Winterhaven, Fla.

The oil is reddish-brown, bitter but with a pleasant nut-like smell. With the bitter taste removed chemically the grapefruit oil makes salad dressing and is used in the textile industry to fix colors so they do not fade.

The bucket of engine oil is the raw material for new types of perfumes resembling those of nature herself in producing odoriferous substances.

The report was by O. N. Jitkow and Prof. Marston T. Bogert of Columbia University.

Hints Earth May be Making Oil Faster Than Man Uses It

Cincinnati, Ohio.—(P)—Some evidence for the startling idea that oil is being formed in the earth faster than man is pumping it out was presented to the American Chemical Society today by Dr. Gustav Eloff, of the Universal Oil Products Co., Chicago.

"Important support to the theory of continual petroleum formation," he said, "is found in the fact that oceans lakes and rivers today abound in not only fish and mollusks closely resembling those found in many petroleum-bearing formations, but also microscopic creatures, such as foraminifera, radiolara and diatoms, which are identical in character with fossils found in oil-bearing structures."

The present war thus far has been largely economic, with both sides battling for the favor of the neutrals. Every nation in Europe, big and little, has been involved in this economic cat-and-mouse game.

Can't Be Neutral

The truth is that neutrality has been impossible under the circumstances. Whether they have wanted to or not, most of the "neutrals" of Europe in one way or another have had their roots sunk in this war.

The plunging of Norway and Denmark into the conflict is indeed shocking. But we must be prepared to accept the unalterable fact that when great empires are in a life-and-death struggle they are not going to stand on ceremony in trying to preserve themselves and defeat the enemy. That is tough on third parties, but war has no conscience and that's the way it goes.

The position of the United States, naturally becomes more delicate with the spread of the war. Because of the increased dangers, this is the moment when Americans should safeguard their neutrality if ever they did. It is at times like this that some sensational incident may cause a public stampede—and there are plenty of people in Europe who want to see us in the conflict.

Voters are Doing Something Besides Going Through the Motions of 1940 Primaries

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY Washington.—(P)—The presidential primaries this year are generating political commotion because for the first time in years they are big news. That's because they are making clear-cut decisions between men and issues despite the fog of confusion that usually shrouds them.

To you and me and the men who put the news in the newspapers, these decisions are news and nothing more.

But to candidates they look like something else. To candidates they are precious advertising—free advertising that can't be bought with money.

And it is the kind of advertising that has been turned into votes in the home stretch, too.

It's this way:

The presidential primary has been law in some states for a little over 20 years. In that time we have held eight presidential elections. In five of those elections the primaries had no more to do with picking the presidential candidates than the village half-wit.

Roosevelt I

The first was 1908 when everybody knew Teddy Roosevelt was going to pick the Republican candidate and his man would win. That's the way it turned out. The primaries had nothing at all to do with it. It was a convention job.

Came 1912. The primaries had a chance for the first time to register a clear-cut decision. And they did. Teddy Roosevelt, who was the former protegee of Taft, in the primaries, and Wilson had the edge on the Democratic side of the fence.

But the Republican convention ignored the primary decision, picked Taft. Roosevelt, encouraged by the showing and the advertising he got in the primaries, ran as an independent. That was for Wilson. In short the primaries played hob.

In 1916 Wilson was a clinch. The Republican candidates, Hughes and Hiram Johnson, refused to enter a primary contest anywhere. Primaries, therefore, meant nothing, and Wilson was elected.

In 1920, all was confusion, and the primaries advertised no one candidate as a stand-out. In 1924 the stand-out was already on hand—Coolidge. Both in 1920, and in '24 the primaries were as useless as an appendix.

Hoover Used Primaries

But in 1928, Hoover made the primaries count for the first time after 1912. He ran in the primaries, and the headlines heralded him as a winner. And he was. Franklin D. Roosevelt worked it the same way in 1932. He entered the primaries insula is in danger. Now that the lid is off, Germany must certainly will make sure of Rumama's oil supplies, which are vital to the reich.

The positions of Russia and Italy are, of course, of vast moment. Neither has indicated its abandonment of non-belligerency, nor is either likely to pending a clarification of the situation.

The fiction that the mere wish and effort of a European state to remain neutral can make it so has been disposed of finally by the events of the past two days—the mine-laying and the German occupations.

Norway charged an open breach of international law against the allies for laying the mines. England and France admitted that this action wouldn't be lawful in ordinary circumstances but claimed that "illegal" German acts justified these counter-measures.

Not Great Shock

Norway was reported as shocked by the development. Still, I don't believe the allied action came as such a great shock to most of Europe, since their naive explanation, so much favored by schoolboys in excusing adventures out of bounds, merely called attention to a situation which had existed since the beginning of the war.

This was that the belligerents had been "rolling their own" when it came to international law. The law as it had been known flew out the window when the war came in at the door. Each combatant had more or less been making his own brand of law to fit the position as he had seen it.

However, most people have become accustomed to this situation. The World War saw virtually all the existing rules broken and all the rights of neutrals violated.

MANY heads that will not "take" an ordinary permanent are successful with the ADEPSOL permanent wave. The oil process of this wave gives luster and life to your hair — the price is $7.50; other permanents from 275 up. adv.

Proposed WPA Fund May Cancel Saving On Budget Estimates

Washington.—(P)—Congress has slashed the president's budget estimates by $50,289,851 in debating 14 appropriation bills, a tabulation showed today, but this saving may be wiped out if it increases the proposed $985,000,000 WPA fund.

The relief bill is the biggest appropriation measure still requiring both house and senate action, although the latter chamber has yet to consider six departmental bills.

A statement by Acting Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.) that the house appropriations committee had done an "efficient" job this session was challenged yesterday in the house by Representative Rich (R-Pa.).

Declaring the committee had approved appropriations for the next fiscal year $1,000,000,000 in excess of the estimated income, Rich shouted: "You'll never get economy until you chase the money-changers out of the White house."

Menasha Council Will Name Three To School Board

Appointments Will be Made at Organization Session Next Week

Menasha — The Menasha council will name three members of the board of education as well as the city attorney and street superintendent at the organization meeting next Tuesday night at the city hall. The first session of the new council elected last Tuesday will follow the same die session of the old council which will start at 7.30. The old council probably will have a busy session before it retires.

Members of the board of education whose terms expire include William Kellert, president and Fifth ward member, Arthur Scholl, Fourth ward, and Joe Riley, Second ward. Last year the council named R. M. Sensesbrenner, Third ward, and C. J. Oberweiser, First ward, to the board, replacing R. M. Woodhead and E. F. Dornbrook.

Other appointments will be to the office of city attorney, now held by Edward C. McKenzie; street superintendent, held by Peter J. Kasel; city engineer, held by A. E. McMahon, bookkeeper, held by Theodore Beach, Jr., and bridge tenders for the Mill street bridge. All appointments are for one year.

Last year M. F. Crowley and Silas Spengler were included in the balloting for city attorney although McKenzie won on the first formal vote. Crowley was later appointed alderman from the Second ward to complete the unexpired term of Earl Sauter who resigned. Crowley was not a candidate for reelection this spring. Spengler, a former city attorney and Third ward supervisor, was a candidate for alderman last Tuesday.

26-Year Record
Peter J. Kasel, street superintendent is completing his twenty-sixth year as a Menasha city employee. Last year M. J. Grode, former alderman, received votes for street superintendent but Kasel won on the first formal ballot. Bert Finch and Frank Edespsky received votes on the informal ballot.

Theodore Beach, Jr., was unanimously elected bookkeeper last year as was A. E. McMahon, city engineer. Bridge tenders named were Frank Heroux, Al Stratton, and Carl Mayer. Other candidates were Kopp, Brutzke, and Ostrowski.

The 2-year term of H. O. Haugh as city health officer also expires this year and the council will make an appointment Tuesday night.

Only two new aldermen will be seated when the new council takes the floor. They are Raymond J. Keefe, First ward, and Patrick Keapock, Second ward, who succeed Robert Tuchscherer and M. F. Crowley, neither of whom was a candidate for reelection. Successful candidates for reelection were William Karrow, Third ward; John R. Scanlon, Fourth ward, and Walter R. O'Brien, Fifth ward.

One of the first orders of business for the new council will be election of a council president who acts as presiding officer when the mayor is absent. Philip Michalkiewicz, Fourth ward alderman and dean of the council who is starting his seventeenth year as alderman, was elected last year.

Mayor W. H. Jensen also will appoint council committees for the next year. Retirement of Tuchscherer and Crowley leaves the chairmanship of two important committees open. Tuchscherer was chairman of the street committee and Crowley headed the fire committee. Other revisions probably will be made by the mayor.

Open Bids for Three Projects in Neenah
Neenah—Bids for three construction projects in Neenah will be opened at a meeting of the city council committee on public improvements at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening at the city hall, according to City Clerk H. S. Zemlock.

One project will include construction of an inverted siphon on the sanitary sewer across the slough under the Main street bridge. Another project calls for construction of manholes on the Lincoln street sewer extension, while the third job includes construction of a retaining wall along Race street, each of N. Commercial street.

Schedule Additional Citizenship Meetings
Neenah—Additional meetings will be held for the purpose of qualifying new voters for citizenship recognition on citizenship day May 19. S. F. Shattuck chairman, announced today that one meeting will be held at 7.30 tonight at Kinross school and the other Tuesday night, April 16.

Attendance at five citizenship forums is required for recognition. Any new voters from the Third and Fifth wards, whose forum closed April 2, may attend the two extra meetings. Gaylord C. Loehning will conduct the sessions.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and display advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street, and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for display advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or telephoned. Orders for classified advertising should be placed by telephoning 543 in Appleton, and the cost of the telephone call will be rebated. The Twin Cities office closes at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Holzman Charts Regulations for Net Tournament

Twenty-First State Tennis Meet Will be Held at Neenah

Neenah — Rules governing the state high school tennis tournament, which will be held in Neenah May 17 and 18, were outlined today by J. H. Holzman, Neenah High school principal, who is the tournament manager.

The twenty-first annual tournament is open to all tennis teams and players in Wisconsin, but schools are urged to send teams to stimulate the growth of tennis as a high school activity. The tournament will be divided into a singles and doubles event.

High schools are requested to hold their own elimination matches and then send their best singles and doubles players to the state meet. Each high school may enter either singles players, a doubles team or both, but the doubles team may compete only in that event, and boys entered in the singles may compete only in that tournament.

In a limited number of entries are received, the round robin method will be used, but if a great number of entries is received, the straight elimination plan will be followed. Eligibility blanks with rankings of players must be in by May 10.

New Scoring System

600 in Audience As Senior Class Presents Comedy

Menasha Students Give Effective Performance Of 'Handy Man'

Menasha—An audience of over 600 persons attended the performance of "Handy Man," a comedy in three acts, presented by the senior class of Menasha High school Monday night in the school auditorium.

The performance of the entire cast kept the audience chuckling but the scenes in which Handy and the Russian prince centered around the punch bowl drew the most laughs.

Norman Michie was nonchalant and entirely at ease in the role of Handy, the father who returned to his family after being away for 20 years. Dorothy Plowright as his wife, Mrs. Mitchell, gave a skillful interpretation to her important role.

The difficult roles of the society-minded Mitchell daughters were played by Patricia Schommer and Jane Finch. Gene Grode was cast as the autocratic son-in-law and his bursts of anger, always ending without physical action, helped to keep the audience amused.

Moves Smoothly
The entire production moved smoothly, even down to the minor yet important roles which included Rosemary Griffith as Mrs. Bruce, Robert Skalmoski as Brown, and two dialect characters, Arlene Parker as the Russian maid and Robert Fenton as the dignified English butler. John Henkel filled in the role of the prince and gave a finished performance.

Guests at the party, who contributed to the stage business, included Earl DeLong, Virginia Barwick, Elizabeth Heckrodt, Gordon Wasinger, Norma Romnek, and Bill Hahn.

The play was produced by Miss Betty Ann Johnson and John Henkel. Marjorie Ankiam was the assistant director and ushers included John Calder, Jack Gummerus, Edward Landress, James Rees, William Schmitzer, Gaylord Thompson, Harold Witt, and William Woodhead. Ray Adams had charge of the lighting and Wilbur Merkle handled the sound effects.

The stage, properties, costume, publicity, and make-up committees were members of the senior class.

"Primarily," he said, "it appears to me to mean that the tempo of the war is being stepped up, and that we can now expect a constantly increasing activity, and possibly an enlarging of the war theater."

Senator Thomas (D-Utah) expressed the opinion that the United States had had "too many shocks of a similar nature" to let its plans to remain neutral be upset.

Hollywood—Remember the slang adage, "He who has, gets?" It has a parallel in the ease with which a big studio, already overrun with topflight stars, can "build" new favorites.

Weather Odds Favor British In Air Tactics

Flying Squadrons Make Most of Advantage in Forecasts

London — The British Royal Air Force enjoys an important advantage over German aviation in the matter of weather information. Normally, weather changes from west to east, British meteorologists know Germany's weather because Britain has had it first.

Forecasts are localized. His information complete, the meteorological officer is able scientifically to estimate the future weather in his own locality, and over the areas where the aircraft of his station will have to fly.

During the severe cold wave the Coastal Command experienced difficult flying weather. At a succession of "fronts" — meeting places of masses of air with different meteorological properties — aircraft were tossed about like corks in a rough sea.

These islands, known as the Virgin Islands or Danish West Indies, were purchased by the United States in 1916, however, for $25,000,000.

First Workout for Ball Club Planned

Dancissak Wants Local Players to Report Tomorrow at 11 A. M.

GAMES ARRANGED
Appleton and Madison To Play Home-and-Home Practice Tilts

SPRING training for Appleton baseball players who are interested in trying out for the Class D team will start tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, it was announced today by Eddie Dancissak, manager of the Appleton entry in the Wisconsin State League. The workouts will be held at the West Spencer street athletic field wherever the players can find a dry spot or two. Dancissak said today that the workouts will feature throwing, a pepper game and probably fielding of fly balls. He also hopes that the drills will bring out a catcher or pitcher or two and that he can start looking over some of the talent.

Regular drills are not scheduled until Monday when all pitchers and catchers have been asked to report. All other candidates will report on April 20 when the season's grind will be underway in earnest. Dancissak also announced today that two training games have been scheduled for the club. On April 28 Appleton will show at Madison against the Blues, new entrant in the Three-Eye league, and on May 5 Madison will come here for a game. Madison is a Milwaukee Brewer farm and the league is a Class B circuit.

In the meantime the Appleton manager is scouting around looking for rooms for the 100 players—more or less—whom he expects in here starting next week. Some of the boys may be around only a few days, others for a week or two and others all season. Nevertheless, he still needs rooms for them.

It also has been announced that Jim Carrig, Chicago, an authority on batting and a representative of one of the big sporting goods houses, will be in Appleton on April 28 to look over the Appleton squad. Carrig also is representative of a nationally known baseball correspondence school.

Never a baseball player of note himself, Carrig has made a study of batting. He has taken motion pictures of various batters in the majors and in recent years he often has been called in to correct a weakness in a player or to bring him out of a slump. He also has made a study of proper fielding and is an expert on what is the best method.

Wike Gridders Hold Indoor Grid Workout

Lawrence college gridders held their first workout yesterday, conditioning exercises and a chalk talk being a part of the session. It was the largest turnout for spring drills in several seasons and Coach Bernie Hesselton was more than pleased. This afternoon the Vikings will be out of doors, mud or no mud, according to Hesselton. He plans more contact work this spring than in past years and will hold his first practice game on Saturday. The older members of the squad will be pitted against the younger boys. Spring drills will run three weeks.

The harsh treatment which Frank Frisch's Pittsburgh Pirates handed Connie Mack's Athletics along the spring exhibition trail this spring proved to be a blessing in disguise. Fordham Flash has changed the Blue forecast into a floating sixth. The Pirates finished last year but it will take a pretty fiery ball club to crowd them that low in 1940 with Fleming Frank calling the signals.

Training Camp Notes

By The Associated Press
SALISBURY, N. C.—Chief worry of the New York Giants these days is Melvin Ott, who usually doesn't cause any headaches. This spring Ott has a 217 batting average, hit only three doubles and nothing longer. A light training route, result of charley horses he suffered late last season, is given as the reason for the slump.

Wichita, Kans.—The showing of the Chicago Cubs' outfield on the long exhibition tour east from California has been pleasing to Manager Gabby Hartnett. Hank Leiber is off to a great start, indicating he's ready to team with Augie Galan and Dominic Dilesandro in a strong offensive and defensive unit. Jim Gleason and Bill Nicholson are doomed to the bench if the rookie maintains his present form. The Cubs fellow travelers, the St. Louis Browns, called upon Elden Auken

Bluefield, W. Va.—Eddie Joost may be lost to the Cincinnati Reds for the rest of their exhibition games as a result of being hit by a ball pitched by Jack Wilson of the Boston Red Sox Sunday. He still is in a Durham, N. C. hospital but club officials said x-ray examination showed he had not suffered a concussion.

Louisville, Ky.—The New York Yankees probably will consider themselves lucky if they can start the season at all after what the Brooklyn Dodgers did in the first clash of their series. Not only did Brooklyn win the game, 16-6, with the aid of a seven-run rally that started when Spud Chandler failed to field an easy grounder, but Lefty Gomez was sent back to the hotel with a sore knee before the game even started. He was struck by a liner off Bill Knickerbocker's bat in pre-game practice.

Knoxville, Tenn.—After today's game with the Knoxville Smokies, Detroit's Tigers leave the still chilly south and move to Evansville, Ind., for their next start.

Kansas City.—The Chicago White Sox looked to Julius Solters to add power to their attack this season. Dissatisfied with the Browns last year, Solters says he's ready to play ball now. "If I don't have a good year, it don't be anybody's fault but my own," he maintains. After four cancellations in five days the Sox hoped to get in a game today against the Pittsburgh Pirates, whose manager, Frank Frisch, is back on the job. The infection in Frisch's throat is healed but he still is barely able to speak.

Salisbury, N. C.—Plagued by an ailing arm, Mel Harder will not pitch any more exhibition games for the Cleveland Indians as of April 10 until he is certain he can handle the job. Another ailing tribesman, Al Milnar, says Manager Oscar Vitt is worrying more than necessary. "I'm 100 per cent better than I was this time last year," he asserts.

Atlanta.—The veteran St. John's is proving a big disappointment to the Phillies this spring. Drafted from Rochester after winning 22 and losing 11, St. John's reported over eight and has been unimpressive.

Fort Worth, Texas.—The St. Louis Cardinals, with only three more exhibitions before they reach home, met Fort Worth's Texas leaguers today. The other stops for the Cards are Oklahoma City and Tulsa.

Winston-Salem, N. C.—Although the Boston Bees blew an eight-run lead in yesterday's slugfest with Washington they found some consolation in the fact Al Lopez wasn't badly hurt. It was feared at first a blow on the middle finger of the catcher's throwing hand had broken the bone, but examination showed only a split finger nail.

Charlotte, N. C.—Jimmy Pofahl, says Manager Buck Harris, is the "best defensive shortstop Washington has owned since Roger Peckinpaugh, and in time he may be better than Peck." The 22-year-old rookie is from Faribault, Minn.

Ranoke, Va.—Appearance of Mike McCormack, red left fielder, in the lineup will be the only change in the Reds' batting order when they open the season next Tuesday in Cincinnati against Chicago. Manager Bill McKechnie announced last night.

Mike has been given the No. 7 position. Harry Craft will take center field and if he slumps the position will be given to Vince Di Maggio.

Indoor Small Bore Rifle Tournament Planned at DePere

DePere.—The Northeastern Wisconsin indoor small bore rifle tournament will be held at St. Norbert college, DePere, April 21, under direction of the Wisconsin State P. and R. club. Two matches will be held on National Rifle association courses.

The first match, open to all, will be a 50 foot test of 30 shots, 10 prone, 10 offhand, five kneeling and five sitting. Any type of sight may be used. Gold medals will be awarded first place, silver for second and bronze for third. There will be a 50 cent fee.

Teams of five members of any club or college unit affiliated with the NRA, are eligible to enter the second match. An entry fee of $1 per team must be made to Secretary E. Weisner, Green Bay, not later than April 20. A club trophy and team medals will be awarded the winners.

Rules governing the tournament.—This rest position allowed in offhand; artificial support not permitted in kneeling or sitting position; time limit of 40 minutes for 30 shots divided as follow—15 minutes prone, 5 minutes sitting, 5 minutes kneeling, 15 minutes offhand.

Philly fans won't miss Virgil Davis out of their catching ensemble so much this year if Ben Warren, their new backstop from Baltimore, can clout major league pitchers like he did the International League stuff. Ed Ben and Smokey Joe Martin were the only Int hitters last year who crowded 3 home runs into one ball game.

RAY NEHLS whacked a 246 game and Roy Johnson topped a 629 series for individual honors during Builders League matches at Arcade alleys last night. Top team totals were turned in by Master Painters with a 1,054 game and Heinritz Sheet Metal with a 3,028 series.

Schuessler Weatherstrips narrowed the lead of Gmeiner and Grea-son to one game by winning three straight from Thiel Floored. Ed Sternard led the winners with a 215 game and 566 series. High for the losers were J. Baus with a 469 series and B. Hoepfner with a 185 single.

Heinritz Sheet Metals grand slammed F. Hoepfner Sons as Roy Johnson battered games of 210, 205 and 214 for his 629 series. Joe Herman cracked a 604 total with a 221 game and Bob Heinritz counted 209. F. Hoepfner totaled 561, H. Hoepfner grooved 205 and L. Sievers banged 204 for the losers.

Win Two Games
Brettschneider's won the odd game from Standard Manufacturing company as G. Kipper counted 192 and 488. R. Schmidt mainstayd the losers with a 198 game and 558 series.

H. Schabo and Son took two games from Al Utschig and Son as O. Schultz tallied 472 with a 194 game. Al Bauer toppled 212 and A. Gehring totaled 534 for the losing quint.

Gmeiner and Grea-son won two games from Wm. Nehls and Son as C. Fetz rated 218 and 553 and R. McCallum hit 203. Milt Lemming mainstayd the losers with a 225 game and 565 series. Bob Nehls adding a 209 single.

H. C. Schultz and Sons won the odd game from Winter and Sons as J. Schultz collected games of 202 and 201 for a 558 series. Tops for the losers was W. Winter with a 163 game and 545 series.

Hoffman Construction company downed Appleton Neon Signs in two games as C. Hoffman etched a 215 game and C. Bauer thumped a 559 series with a 202 game. G. Hoffman adding a 201. R. Turkow showed 193 and 490 for the losers.

Phil Masi, Chicago Italian who never played above Class B until he joined the Boston Bees last spring, made the grade with a wallop in his own wallop. Understudying Al Lopez means light work over a season's play, but Manager Casey Stengel has ideas of a heavier schedule for Phil by making an infielder or outfielder out of the husky youth in order to use his power in the Bee batting order.

Boxing Row May Bring U. S. Into the Picture

BY JOHN F. CHANDLER
BALTIMORE.—(P)—A mix-up between two states and the N. B. A. over the world's featherweight title brought a call today for a federal government investigation.

Between the National Boxing association, the Maryland and Louisiana athletic commissions and several contenders for the crown taken from Joey Archibald by the N. B. A., it appeared that nothing short of a supreme court opinion could untangle the wranglers.

Much of the difficulty arose last fall in Washington when Archibald was awarded a split decision over Harry Jeffra of Baltimore in their memorable title battle. Jeffra supporters claimed he was robbed.

Cramming everything into several nutshells, the situation stacked up today like this:

1. The Maryland athletic commission, through Chairman Stanley Scherr, said it was resigning from the N. B. A. and would accord full title recognition to the winner of a May 20 Baltimore bout between Archibald and Jeffra. (The N. B. A. said Archibald had been ousted for refusing to fight Petey Scalzo.)

The DOG OWNER and HIS DOG

If France and England are allowed in what is expected to develop into a war in Europe, two dogs at the International Kennel club show in Chicago last Sunday didn't seem aware of it. No sooner did they step into the ring for the group judging of the non-sporting dogs than they were almost yanking the arms of their handlers in an attempt to get at each other's throat.

One of the pure-breds was a nine-month old French bulldog, the other an English bulldog recently imported by Canadian, Reg. P. Sparkes at a reported figure just over $12,000. Incidentally, the English has been dropped from the John Bull dog, but the descriptive handle still identifies the one of French origin.

We had hoped to list the Wisconsin winners in this greatest of mid-western bench shows, but although I. K. C. office promised to have the material here for us by Wednesday, and in spite of the fact that we risked the wrath of our editors by waiting an extra day before sending in this copy, the wins are not here for publication.

So, for you deserving subscribers among the dog fancy, who may not have been fortunate enough to witness the spectacle, and don't bother to read the Chicago papers, here's a little of the dope. If the stuff seems somewhat ramby, you'll know it's because we're still thinking about those missing lists.

Records were broken. 1401 entered of 78 different breeds. 1523 class entries. . . . 70 obedience test entries. . . . gate nearly 30,000 for the two days. There were 22 judges. . . . Dr. Henry Jarret made the best in show award. . . . groups were judged by: Walter H. Reeves, sporting; Mrs. M. Hartly Dodge, hounds; G. V. Glebe, working; Matt R. Korshin, terriers; Enno Meyer, toys; Charles G. Hopton, non-sporting. . . . Champion Maro of Maridor, orange belton English setter, romped off with the best in show trophy. . . . he was hard pressed by some of the best dogs in the country which had won in their breeds and groups: beagle, Meadowlark, Draftsman, dogman pinscher, Ferry v. Rauh-felsen (last year's b.i.s. winner), wirehaired fox terrier, Crackley Striking of Willocks; pekingses, Remenhan Derrie of Orchard Hill; bulldog, Basford Golden Nymph; ($12,000.)

While doberman pinschers had the largest entry in the obedience test trial, capably judged by Willy Necker, the following breeds were well represented: vachalard, fox-terrier, rottweiler, great dane, German shepherd, collie, greyhound, English springer spaniel, Shetland sheep-dog, sealyham terrier, cocker spaniel, boxer, Irish setter, pomeranian and Welsh terrier.

The gallery at the obedience tests was exceeded only at the special performance of Necker's beautifully trained dobermans. . . . the act is better than ever. . . . climaxed by one of the dogs holding a nursing bottle for a little lamb to feed on, which the woolly little cuss does with great gusto.

Judge Hopton held the m. c. spot during the final hours of the show. The distinguished looking old Englishman is a dog man from the top of his tall, straight frame south. . . . listening to him is an education in

BATH FOR BOWLING BALL

Chapel Hill, N. C.—(P)—The bowling ball has gone hygienic. A University of North Carolina bacteriologist and a layman have collaborated to invent a gadget that gives the balls a germicidal bath after every throw.

Byron Beversdorf, 49 pounds, both of Marion, fought three rounds to a draw in the paperweights. Willie Wiseman, 207 pounds, and Roy Wiesman, 170 pounds, both of Marion, boxed an exhibition draw.

Steinle Continues to Hold Lead in Canvass

Milwaukee (AP)—Circuit Judge Roland J. Steinle continued to lead Leonard C. Fons today as the official canvass of votes cast for circuit judge, Milwaukee Branch 3, neared a close.

The official tabulation was completed for the city of Milwaukee, Cudahy, South Milwaukee, West Allis, Wauwatosa and the town of Franklin.

The fourth error by election clerks discovered to date out of Steinle's lead but still left him an apparent margin of 384 votes. The discrepancy was discovered in a town of Lake precinct, where Fons was credited with 579 votes and Steinle with 431, a total of 1,010 although only 1,003 votes were cast in the precinct.

Steinle's total, including 11,034 votes still to be checked, was 132,100. Fons' total, including 5,987 still to be checked, was 131,716.

Fons' supporters conceded yesterday that Steinle was apparently elected, but a recount by the defeated candidate—Steinle or Fons—was considered certain.

Swimming Pool Site Committee Discusses Preliminary Plans

Members of the municipal swimming pool site selection committee met last night in city hall to discuss preliminary plans. The members became acquainted with each other and decided to look at pool sites next week.

The committee was appointed by Mayor Goodland at the request of the city council which by its action indicated a willingness to construct a pool.

The present municipal pool at the water purification plant will be discontinued this year to make way for plant improvements, scheduled to start about June 1.

Weatherman Sees Cloudy Wednesday

Sun Emerges Today; Temperature at 46 at Noon in City

Inhabitants of Appleton and vicinity were ready today to welcome a spell of pleasant spring weather, but the weatherman says it can't last.

The sun sailed out of obscurity today and the temperature rose after several days of dismal skies but tomorrow's forecast is for cloudiness, with rain in the extreme north part of the state.

The Milwaukee bureau Wednesday's weather will be "somewhat warmer." Rain or snow is predicted for northern Wisconsin tonight.

The reading of 44 at 9 o'clock this morning was the highest mark for the 24-hour period ended at that hour, the Wisconsin Michigan Power company reported. The minimum was 34 at 5 o'clock this morning.

At noon today the instrument atop the Post-Crescent building registered 46 degrees.

Phoenix, Ariz., with 86, and Devils Lake, N. D., with 71, turned in the extreme readings in the nation yesterday.

David Bliss Will Enter Legion's Oratory Contest

High School Senior Will Get Send-Off From Students

Loyal student friends and relatives will gather at the railway station Tuesday night to give their best wishes to David Bliss, a high school senior, as he leaves for Vandalia, Ill., to represent Wisconsin in the regional oratory contest sponsored by the American Legion.

Bliss was chosen to represent Appleton in the second annual American Legion oratory contest when he appeared in the Heiss recital at the high school early this spring. At that time he also was selected to represent Appleton in the Fox River Valley oratory recital held at Marinette.

After he was judged the winner of the Legion's regional contest, Bliss went to Milwaukee where he competed for the state championship with eight contestants who had won the four elimination contests at Appleton, Janesville, Waupaca and Superior. If Bliss is successful at Vandalia he will go to Vincennes, Ind., April 12 for the sectional contest for the middle and south west. The national finals will be held April 15 in historic Faneuil Hall, Boston, Mass.

The title of Bliss' speech, an original oration, is "Of Thee I Sing." The value of the freedom enjoyed in a democracy is its keynote. It is Bliss' contention that through education an appreciation of that freedom must be maintained.

Chamberlain Says British Navy Moving in Northern Conflict Zone

BY EDWIN STOUT
London (AP)—Britain's powerful navy is moving into the northern conflict to aid Norway against German invasion. Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today in a brief lustily cheered speech.

Chamberlain charged that Germany had premeditated the invasion of Norway and Denmark and he pledged the "full aid" of Britain and France to Norway.

"Powerful units of the navy are at sea," Chamberlain told the house, explaining that details must necessarily be kept secret.

Reports reached London by way of Paris that allied naval forces already were engaged with the Germans at various points along the Norwegian coast during a heavy storm.

The British Press association said there was no official confirmation that a British expeditionary force was enroute to Norway other than the government's expression of determination to aid Norway.

Chamberlain said it was plain that the German expedition to Scandinavia must have been underway before Britain mined Norwegian waters yesterday, otherwise it could not have occupied such faraway points as Trondheim, on Norway's northern coast, as reported.

Supreme Court Affirms Judge Ryan's Decision
The supreme court today upheld a decision of Judge Thomas M. Ryan made in municipal court last fall, awarding Miss Marie School, Neenah, $2,500 in a damage suit against the Milwaukee Automobile Insurance company, Henry Wipolt, Kaukauna, Herbert Anderson, Neenah, and the Maryland Casualty company.

The suit grew out of a traffic accident involving cars driven by Wipolt and Anderson Dec. 25, 1938. The girls were occupants of the Anderson car.

13 of Every 100 Wisconsin Residents Get Public Help

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Thirteen out of every 100 persons in Wisconsin early this year were receiving some form of public assistance from state, local and federal funds, the state public welfare department showed in statistics made public today.

The Fox river valley area generally showed a lower proportion of dependence upon public assistance grants than the rest of the state. It was shown, but the lowest load in the state was in the southern agricultural counties.

Twenty counties in Wisconsin showed a burden of under 10 per cent, including Outagamie and Kaukauna in the northeastern Wisconsin section. Most of the northeastern part of the state was in the second class, with 10 to 15 per cent of the population receiving public aid, in which a total of 30 counties were grouped. Eleven counties, in northern Wisconsin, reported more than a quarter of their residents on public assistance rolls.

The figures included state general relief, federal works programs, social security aids, civilian conservation corps employment, and farm subsistence grants.

Lowest county in the state was Kewaunee with 3.9 per cent, while the highest was Florence with 43.8 per cent.

Here are the figures for dependency in the northeastern Wisconsin section:

County	% of Pop.
Brown	10.4
Outagamie	9.0
Waupaca	12.2
Shawano	12.5
Calumet	5.0
Manitowoc	6.7
Winnebago	10.3

Ferries, Trains, Naval Vessels Used in Nazi Capture of Denmark

Berlin (AP)—The German high command described today how ferries, armored trains and naval vessels were used in occupying Denmark.

"In the gray of morning German troops landed at Middelfart on the small belt and occupied bridges there," a communique said.

"German sea forces entered the Great Belt and landed troops at Korsor and Nyborg (ferry points connecting with Sealand island on which Copenhagen is situated near the mainland portion of Denmark.)"

"Coming from Warnemunde, troops and an armored train, traveling by ferry, landed at Gjedser and from there started a march north. At the same time bridges at Vordingborg in the south and the island of Sealand were occupied.

"German troops occupied Copenhagen at dawn. The citadel and radio stations were occupied. Since 8 a.m. the entire city has been in the hands of Germans."

Oslo Reported In German Hands; Government Moves to was under an air-raid alarm throughout the morning.

German troops landed on the southern coast while German military and naval units seized the strategic ports of Vallo, Bergen, Trondheim and Narvik. Christiansand was bombed by German warships and planes. Prognun was bombed from the air about noon.

The Norwegian government called all citizens to the colors, ordered removal of civilians from Oslo within two days, and itself fled to Hamar, 60 miles north of Oslo.

Mrs. Harrman took over the duties of the British and French ministers to Norway, the reasons for this not being made clear.

Germany announced she had mined all the coastal waters, including ports of Sweden.

Denmark Not Mentioned
Some circles suggested that the crews of German freighters awaiting en route to have been embargoed from their account in the Caroline State bank by the former cashier.

The last day the bank could file a claim against the Maryland firm under its policy insuring funds handled by employees was April 10, 1938, the court said, and since the loss was reported April 21, 1938, it could not be covered by the insuring policy.

The court also dismissed the suits of Herman Matz, guardian for Dorothy and Gladys Tews, and Hildegarde Matz, against the FDIC and the state banking commission for $6,210 alleged to have been embezzled from their account in the Caroline State bank by the former cashier.

occupied a number of points of military importance and said that as "telephone and telegraph communications in Denmark are unreliable, the newspapers published this afternoon will only carry news supplied by the Ritzau agency."

Radio listeners were directed to stay tuned in all day to get "a number of important announcements."

In London and Paris there were diplomatic and cabinet sessions. Prime Minister Chamberlain declared in the house of commons today that German plans for the invasion of Norway and Denmark were "made and put into operation" long before the allies laid mines Monday in Norwegian waters.

The Merrill Junior Chamber of Commerce will hear a speech by Fred Boughn, Appleton, state vice president, tomorrow evening, but Fred will be in Appleton at the time, not Merrill.

Unable to make the appointment because of illness, Boughn made a recording of his speech at a music studio and has sent the record to Merrill. The talk is on the benefits of affiliation with the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

SAVE ZEBRAS
Africa is famous for its animals, and well it may be! It is the home of lions, leopards, rhinos, giraffes, zebras and other interesting wild beasts.

Zebra colt playfully standing beside mother. (Drawn from a photograph).

Perhaps you remember the questions of a reader, "Is a zebra black with white stripes, or white with black stripes?" The answer is that it is white, or cream-colored, with black stripes. The abdomen is white, or cream-colored, and this gives the key to the answer. The dark stripes, however, may cover as much, or almost as much, of the body as the light ones. The head, neck and legs are stripes. A small boy saw a zebra, and asked, "Why did they put that animal in prison?"

The stripes are Nature's way of helping the zebra race live through dangers. They match the lights and shadows cast by tall grass, and this may keep them from being seen as they graze. It is important for zebras not to be seen by certain fierce animals, especially lions. Although zebras are expert kickers, they cannot match a lion in fighting power. Many a zebra has made a meal for a lion.

Lions range over parts of southern Asia, but they are found in largest number in Africa. They roam about the southern edge of the Sahara desert, and are fairly common in Ethiopia and in some sections of central Africa.

There are places in central Africa where lions are seldom, if ever, to be seen. I am thinking of the dense forests which grow where the rainfall is heavy. The trees, bushes and vines in those forests grow so close together that they do not give the lion the kind of "living room" he likes.

The deep forests of central Africa contain the big apes called gorillas. These animals have skins which are dark, almost black. Most of the body is covered by coarse hair.

Gorillas are hard to keep in captivity. From time to time they have been taken out of Africa and placed in zoos. They seldom live more than three or four years after being taken in human care.
